FIGHT LAUNCHED ON EAST SIDE DOG AND HORSE RACING

Granite City Business Men
Would Put Fairmount
Jockey and Madison Kennel
Clubs Out of Business

DETIMENT TO THE COMMUNITY, THEY SAY

Committee Named With Financial Backing to Take Fight Into Court If Necessary.

A movement to put out of business the Fairmount Jockey Club and the Madison Kennel Club, operating horse and dog racing tracks in the Madison County, near Collinsville, was launched last night at a special meeting of the Granite City Commercial Club, called for that purpose.

The club adopted a resolution branding the racing tracks as "a detriment to the community" and calling upon authorities to enforce the laws against gambling. A committee was appointed, with financial backing, to confer with county and state authorities and to go to court if necessary.

The Commercial Club is representative of the business and industrial life of Granite City. About 100 members attended last night's meeting, in Masonic Temple. The session was opened by William Champion, president of the club, banker and business man.

Statement of President.

"I wish to call your attention to the horse and dog tracks in this county," he said. "The dogs race at night and the horses during the day. Between them they have taken over $250,000 out of this community. I have been informed by a reliable business man who is in a position to know what he talks about, that not a reformer, but there is a good coming from those race tracks. There is a disposition by a number of people to shut up and say nothing about this. If we want the tracks operating, all right, but we don't, nobody can put that thing over on us."

President Champion, as well as speakers who followed him, explained they were not actuated having bet on the wrong horse or dog at any time. "They're getting my money, but they're getting plenty from others," Champion said.

Namekiki Man at Meeting.

"They got none of my money," declared Chris H. Kunnemann, mayor of Namekiki, which is in Madison County.

"The Fairmount Club has a very old-looking place out there, but it doesn't do us any good. Every time they have an armoured truck taking there all the race tracks over to St. Louis, it was Kunnemann who offered resolution branding the racing tracks and handbooks a detriment to the community and demanding enforcement of the anti-gambling laws. The resolution was adopted unanimously. A committee was appointed by President Champion. "I'm going to ask for money to finance the committee's work and won't stop until the races are closed."

Moral Objection Also.

Discussing the matter later with Post-Dispatch reporter, Champion said residents of Granite City were opposed to race track gambling not only from a business standpoint, but from a moral one. "I think this will be the end of the races," commented Champion. "I'm going to ask for money to finance the committee's work and won't stop until the races are closed."

Meetings Highly Profitable.

The Fairmount Jockey Club and the Madison Kennel Club recently completed spring meetings which were largely attended and, according to reports, highly profitable to the operators. Some complaints that the horse tracks have been a detriment to the community, and attributed to the fact that the operators "take" a commission on bets. "In such a betting is not recognized in Illinois and bettors, technically, do not bet, but rather 'win' in a horse's chance to win."

LEOPARD AT LARGE IN JERSEY, AFTER ESCAPE AT ZOO

Residents and Police Search Countryside Near Red Bank or Animal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Keepers at the Quinn Brook Zoo, just outside of Redbank, N. J., were preparing to transfer a full grown Indian leopard from a wooden shipping cage yesterday when the animal broke loose and escaped.

Police, State troopers and many residents of Middlesex and Monmouth counties, armed with rifles and shotguns, last night searched the fields and woodlands.

Warnings to wayfarers were broadcast from the municipal radio station, WNYC. A reward of $100 was offered for the capture of the leopard—dead or alive. Several motorists reported seeing the fugitive. One said the animal passed his car on a gallop and seemed to be heading for a barn.

BLIND MAN IDENTIFIES SWINDLER BY VOICE

Prisoner, Accused of Getting $5
Change for $1 Bill, Admits Charge, Police Say.

William Dee is a blind man, and in the operation of his confectionery store at 402 South Euclid avenue must take the word of his customers as to the denomination of bills they give him. Thus, when a voice said, last Saturday morning, "This is a five-dollar bill," he believed the voice.

It was a man's voice, and its owner had made a 45-cent purchase. Dee counted out $4.55 in change, taking one-dollar bills from his cash register, where he folds them in such a way as to distinguish them from bills of larger denomination.

A short while later another customer came in and Dee handed him the stranger's bill. "Is it a $5 bill?" he asked. He said, "No, you've been swindled. It's a $1 bill."

He had been alone in the store when the swindler came the first time. That afternoon, the swindler came back, and Dee's clerk, Miss Florence Amstutz, was in the store also. Dee recognized the man's voice. This time the swindler bought 70 cents' worth of goods and tendered another bill. "What denomination?" Dee asked.

"It's a $10 bill," the man replied. "I don't believe it," Dee answered. "You're the man who swindled me this morning. Miss Amstutz, have a look at this bill and see if it is a $10 bill."

Before Miss Amstutz could inspect the bill the man fled. She gave his description to the police. Yesterday afternoon they arrested a 48-year-old police character known to specialize in petty thievery. Both Miss Amstutz and Dee identified the suspect as the swindler. Dee insisting he knew him from his voice. Capt. Looper of the Newstead avenue district reported that the swindler has confessed.

MISS EDERLE IS TWO MILES FROM GOAL IN CHANNEL SWIM

At 4:45 P. M. American
Woman Had Been 12 1/2
Hours in the Water on Second Attempt to Cross.

By the Associated Press.
DOVER, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle was five miles to the north of Dover and about two miles from the English coast at 9 o'clock tonight on her English Channel swim.

By the Associated Press.
DOVER, England, Aug. 6.—Miss Gertrude Ederle, 19-year-old American, was six miles from Dover at 7:45 p. m. today on her attempt to swim the 19 miles from France to this port. No woman has yet succeeded in swimming the channel.

The lights off Goodwin Sands, about six miles from the English coast, reported this evening that Miss Ederle was going strong as she passed the ship. The men there said the tide was in favor of her success.

She had been in the water 12 1/2 hours, having begun her attempt at Cape Gris-Nez, on the French side, at 7:09 a. m.

The wind, which has been kicking up a choppy sea here, had moderated slightly, but a heavy rain was falling and conditions were far from favorable.

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Aug. 6.—Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, started at 7:09 o'clock this morning in an attempt to swim the English Channel. The weather conditions were fine when she took her plunge. The sea was smooth and the weather fairly warm, with the temperature 61.7 degrees Fahrenheit.

It was a grim and determined swimmer that entered the water this morning, in sharp contrast to last year, when she dived off as if on a holiday. She walked into the channel from the sandy beach instead of diving from the rocks of the cape, as she did last year.

She barely acknowledged the cheers of the few onlookers but walked briskly until the water reached her waist, then began a steady crawl of 28 strokes per minute, making for the escorting tug, Alsace, 500 yards away.

She was going very strong and her trainer, T. W. Burgess, was already warning her: "Take your time, Miss Ederle!"

Getting Ready for the Swim.

Miss Ederle did not come from Boulogne on board the conveying tug, as in her last attempt, but creased her body in the Hotel Sirene at the Cape. The swimming was done by her sister, Margaret. First a coat of lanoline about an inch thick was applied and then a layer of heavy grease. Miss Ederle then put on a navy blue swimming suit, cut deep under the arms, and over this a third layer of grease was applied. "Gee, But It's Cold," were her first words as she struck off in the channel water.

For the first two miles after she caught up with the tug, Miss Ederle continued mechanically at 28 to 29 strokes a minute, making good progress. The sea was calm, and she raised her goggles over her forehead for several hundred yards, saying: "It will be time enough to look through these things when the breeze freshens."

"Strictly business," was the motto aboard the conveying tug, with only Miss Ederle's father, sister, trainer Burgess, Ishak Helmy and a swimming federation official, Joseph Costa, aboard besides the crew.

Newspaper men and photographers followed on the ocean-going tug La Morinie. The pilots of both tugs did their best to shield the swimmer from the increasing breeze.

There was no jazz band aboard the tug, but a phonograph began to grind out, "Yes Sir, That's My Baby."

Collapsed at End of Nearly Nine Hours on Last Attempt.

Gertrude Ederle, once amateur champion, who is now a professional, tried last summer to make the same 19 miles of water. After long training, Miss Ederle started from Cape Gris Nez, and was within six and one-half miles of the goal when she collapsed.

RECORD SET HERE IN USE OF WATER, MERCURY AT 98

Consumption 157,700,000 Gallons Yesterday—Temperature Today Again at Highest Mark of Year.

FOUR-DEGREE DROP FROM NOON TO 1 P. M.

High Humidity Increases
Discomfort—Relief Promised for Tonight—Many Persons Slept in Parks.

With the season's record temperature of 98 degrees reached for the fourth time at noon today, the prospect was that a new heat record would be established before sunset. However, an unexpected shift of wind and cloudiness during the noon hour sent the mercury down four degrees to 94 at 1 o'clock, and cooler weather is forecast for tonight.

The discomfort today was heightened by high humidity. The reading was 42 at noon which Forecaster Hayes considered about seven per cent higher than it should be with a temperature of 98.

The heat wave, which is nationwide, began yesterday and caused a new water consumption record to be established in St. Louis. A high temperature of 98 was reached at 4:30 p. m., equaling the high mark of July 2 and July 20.

The total of water pumped into mains was 157,700,000 gallons, an increase of 100,000 gallons over the record established July 20. The record previous to that was 157,000,000 gallons in 1918. Director of Public Utilities Pritchard said a good pressure was maintained at the peak hours in the outlying districts and no complaints were made to the department.

Night temperatures ranged from 92 at 7 p. m. to 80 at 6 a. m., slightly lower than those of Thursday of last week, which was the most uncomfortable night of the year. Many families in congested districts sought relief by sleeping in the public parks.

Forecaster Hayes does not consider the temperatures unusually high for this time of year. The unusual thing in the heat wave, in his opinion, is that it prevails in every State of the union except North Dakota, Minnesota, Montana and Wisconsin.

A temperature of 98 is not uncommon in St. Louis, said Hayes, although the last time it was exceeded was in 1921 when the mercury reached 99. The record high for St. Louis was 107 in 1913 and 1914, the record was 102.

Frank Mavon, 70 years old, living at the Blair Hotel, Ninth and Pine streets, is at City Hospital in a serious condition attributed to heat exhaustion. He fell to the pavement at Thirteenth and Olive streets at 2 p. m. yesterday, cutting his head.

Man, 70, Prostrated by Heat.

Frank Morgan, 70 years old, who gave his address as the Blair Hotel, collapsed at 2 p. m. yesterday at Thirteenth and Olive streets and is in City Hospital under treatment for heat prostration.

107 Degrees at Hoopston Sets Heat Record.

By the Associated Press.
HOOPSTON, Ill., Aug. 6.—All known heat records in this section of Illinois were exceeded yesterday when the thermometers registered 107 degrees. There were several reports but no fatalities. Today thermometers recorded 90 degrees.

Man Killed in Windstorm Near Petersburg, Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PETERSBURG, Ill., Aug. 6.—A man was killed and heavy property damage caused by a windstorm which swept this community today. Store buildings were uprooted by the gale, which was accompanied by heavy rain and hail. Following the storm, the body of Urban Anklem was found on the banks of the Sangamon River where he had been fishing.

VETERAN CONGRESSMAN LOSES ARDMORE, Ok., Aug. 6.—Charles D. Carter, veteran Congressman from the Third Oklahoma District, was defeated for re-election to the Democratic nomination by Wilbur Cartwright, young school teacher-lawyer from McAlester. Carter, who has represented the district since Oklahoma was admitted to statehood nearly 19 years ago, estimated that Cartwright's plurality would amount to 1300.

Carter was a member of the Appropriations Committee in the last Congress and is a recognized authority on Indian affairs. He announced he would retire from politics. He pledged his support to his youthful opponent.

87 FINED $2500 EACH IN U. S. ANTI-TRUST SUIT

After Two Years of Legal Construction Malleable Castings Men Plead Nolo Contendere.

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 6.—Federal anti-trust suit of almost two and a half years duration against 48 members of the American Malleable Castings Association and 47 large malleable iron castings companies was terminated today when 87 defendants appeared before Federal Judge Westenhaven entered pleas of nolo contendere and were each fined $2500.

The indictment was returned under the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act. Maximum fines for corporations for this charge are $5000 and for individuals $5000 and a year's imprisonment. The $2500 fine was agreed upon at the conference last week.

The fines today total $232,500. Several weeks ago five of the original 95 defendants entered pleas and were fined an aggregate of $14,500. This brings the total of the fines to $232,000.

The indictment to which the defendants pleaded was returned by a Federal grand jury at Cleveland in March, 1924. Since then the accused men have exhausted every legal means to keep from being brought to trial.

The indictment returned recited that the defendants manufacture or sell in interstate commerce malleable castings in the United States; accused them of having conspired since January, 1917, to assign and allot the buyers of malleable iron castings amongst themselves and to fix prices and thus to eliminate competition.

CANVASSERS FOR RECALL OF MAYOR TO RENEW WORK

They Will Endeavor to Bring Total of Signatures to 120,000 Before the Petitions Are Filed.

WILL REVISE PRESENT
LISTS OF 94,000

Miller's Political Activity in Recent Primary to Be Cited in Obtaining New Names.

Canvassers with petitions for the recall of Mayor Miller will renew their work in various parts of the city in the next week, in the endeavor to bring the total of signatures to 120,000 before the petitions are filed with the Election Board.

The list of the signatures must be filed with the Election Board on the general election Nov. 2. John J. Hill, chairman of the Miller Recall Committee, and thus far the only person openly sponsoring the recall movement, said today that the new canvass was made in order that the lists of petitioners might conform to the registration lists, which were revised for the recent primary. Deaths and removals have lessened the number of valid signatures, which was given as about 94,000 in the last announcement by Hill, several weeks ago.

Requirements of the Charter. The charter requires, for valid recall petitions, signatures of registered voters equal in number to 20 per cent of the registration for the last mayoralty election. This number would be about 60,500. The charter further specifies that the signatures must be obtained from 20 per cent in each of 19 wards.

This is the difficult part of the requirement, and to meet it, the canvass last spring was made in selected wards, and not at large. Hill was asked by the Post-Dispatch whether he expected the recall movement after the primary, he said, he would not give, at this time, the names of any others who are interested in the movement.

Hill issued a new statement as to the reasons for the recall, setting forth the ground which will be given by canvassers for seeking new signatures to the petitions.

Mayor's Political Activity Cited. The primary activity in the recall movement, he said, should be recalled. The City Hall, he said, was turned over entirely to political work, to the detriment of public business, and the anti-prohibition sentiment of St. Louis was disregarded in the Mayor's mandate to city employees to support Proctor for the Senate.

He also cites the use of the Efficiency Board for political purposes, and the removal of Director of Public Utilities Wall, which occurred while the recall movement was first under way.

"Many charitably inclined citizens, at the beginning of the recall movement," Hill says, "expressed the hope that Mayor Miller's mistakes would be fewer and his administration more successful as time went on. But in view of the recent activity of the Mayor, citizens have come to the conclusion that to hope for better results from the Mayor's office is all in vain."

SCIENTISTS STARTED BY NEW BIRTH TEST

Chimpanzee, Physiologists Are Told, Expected to Have Child Artificially Planned.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 6.—Dr. Serge Voronoff, who has specialized in "monkey gland" operations, told the Physiologists' Congress here yesterday that he expected the progeny of his experimental chimpanzee, Nora, to which she will give birth in December or January.

He told them in detail the manner in which he had attempted his experiment. He grafted organs of a human female in Nora to 1924. These functioned normally, he said. Last June, with the assistance of Dr. Ivanoff of the Pasteur Institute in Paris, Voronoff said, he impregnated the ape artificially with human germs. The experiment has proceeded successfully up to this time, he added.

His account of his experiment shocked those scientists who did not regard it with skepticism and who appeared to be worried at the moral and religious issues which may be raised by the birth of a Nora's offspring.

Churchmen Wonder If Offspring Can Be Said to Have Soul. Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The view of the scientists here is one of skepticism, that of churchmen horror, and that of lawyers interested legal speculation, toward the experiment of Dr. Serge Voronoff and his claim that the chimpanzee, Nora, will give birth to an artificially planned child. None of those to whom Voronoff's latest experiment was explained would be quoted.

The churchmen raised the question whether, if the experiment is successful, its result will be deemed to have a human soul. None would venture an opinion.

Physicians and surgeons doubted that the experiment would result in the birth of a living organism, although they all confessed themselves as unable to state dogmatically anything about it.

From a prominent lawyer came the suggestion that if Nora's progeny, hitherto unknown, as to whether it is human. If found to be human the courts would have to appoint guardians or "search for the parent," which is forbidden in France under the code Napoleon.

One surgeon, who has worked with Voronoff in other experiments, said he had heard of the latter's most recent attempt. Voronoff, he said, had determined to make no announcement until he was certain Nora's present condition was following a normal course.

MAYOR PLEDGES AID TO SENATOR WILLIAMS

Miller, Before Departing for Vacation, Wishes Nominating Success in Campaign.

Somehow in the great open spaces, or the medium-sized semi-detached houses, where nobody cares about primary pluralities or recall percentages, Mayor Miller will spend the next three weeks or so.

The Mayor and Mrs. Miller left this morning on a train which makes only a few stops this side of Buffalo. He did not make known the destination, though he said it would be remote from newspapers and, if possible, from long-distance telephones.

The Georgian Bay region, in a convenient section of Ontario, has been a favorite place of resort with the Mayor in the past, and he said not long ago that he planned to go there for this year's vacation. Lon W. Harlow, a personal friend of the Mayor, was on the same train.

Mayor's Message to Williams. At the Mayor's office, after he had departed, the Mayor's secretary today gave out a copy of a message of congratulation sent by Mayor Miller to Senator Williams.

"Please accept my congratulations upon your overwhelming victory," the message said. "You are the choice of our party and I wish you success in the campaign. My services are at your disposal, and I shall be glad to contribute whatever I can to your success."

The Mayor also left a prepared statement, setting forth that "it is the duty of every loyal, patriotic Republican to support the party's candidates, regardless of his or her personal opinion of their qualifications." "The Republican party," he added, "is bigger and more important than any one individual or collection of individuals associated with it."

To Support Republican Ticket. "It is my purpose," the Mayor announced, "to exert every power at my command in the interest of the Republican party. The prosperity of our country is primarily due to the splendid administration of Calvin Coolidge, and it is our duty, as Republicans, to send to his aid in the Senate men of Republican belief, interested in the success of the Republican party."

"I hope that all the petty differences which always accumulate in a primary will be forgotten, and that everyone will put his shoulder to the wheel for party success."

Williams Departs for Fishing Trip in the Ozarks. Senator Williams today started on an Ozark float and fishing trip, which he had expected to take immediately after the adjournment of Congress, but which he was forced to postpone because of the requirements of his campaign.

Accompanied by Kiehl McCane, State Fish and Game Commissioner; United States Revenue Collector, Louis Becker, chairman of the Republican City Committee; Branch Ricey and J. B. Sheridan of St. Louis, and Herman Langworthy of Kansas City, the Senator will float the Current River from Eminence to Van Buren, Mo.

Miss Barrett Still Kept in Bed by Exhaustion. By the Associated Press. LOVELL, England, Aug. 6.—Clairable Barrett, New Rochelle, N. Y., who came within two miles of swimming the English Channel from Dover to Cape Gris Nez, is still keeping to her bed. Her nurse and friend, Miss Grace Leister of Littleport, insisted absolute quiet and rest are imperative after the exhaustion Miss Barrett experienced in her swim of 21 hours and 35 minutes.

Miss Barrett probably will not decide for several days whether she will try again to conquer the Channel this year, Miss Leister asserts that Miss Barrett did not lose more than three or four pounds in her battle with the Channel and was so well trained that her condition was unexpectedly good when she was taken from the water. She attributes Miss Barrett's endurance largely to the amount of food she was able to eat when in the Channel.

Mrs. Hahn was arrested at midnight and charged with murder. She denied the charge, asserting that Mrs. Vukelich had attacked her with the ax and in defending herself she pushed the ax back, accidentally striking Mrs. Vukelich on the head with the blunt end.

The killing was the culmination of petty wrangles between the two families extending over several weeks. According to the women, the men charging each other with speaking ill of the other's wife.

Husband Charged Threat. The men almost came to blows on the evening of July 27, when they quarreled over the back fence. Next day Vukelich obtained a warrant for Hahn's arrest, charging that Hahn threatened him with an ax.

Later that afternoon, July 28, Vukelich went to Rentscher Station, four miles away, to make some purchases, and upon returning found his wife lying on the kitchen floor with a wound in her head. She told him Mrs. Hahn had struck her with an ax. A physician from Mascoutah administered treatment, and next day Mrs. Vukelich accompanied her husband to Belleville and obtained a warrant against Mrs. Hahn, charging assault. The latter was arrested and released on bond.

In making a sworn statement for the warrant Mrs. Vukelich said Mrs. Hahn, carrying an ax, came into her kitchen after Vukelich had gone to Rentscher and without provocation struck her on the head with it. Mrs. Hahn was holding her 2-year-old child from the floor.

Upon returning home Mrs. Vukelich's condition grew worse and a few days later she was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital. An examination there disclosed the fracture that resulted fatally.

Mrs. Hahn is held without bond. An inquest will be held at Belleville this afternoon.

Houdini in Coffin Under Water Hour and a Half

Famous for Getting Out of Things, He Stays in Sealed 6 1-2-Foot Galvanized Casket, Airtight, at Bottom of Pool.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Harry Houdini, famous for getting out of things, has managed to stay inside a 6 1-2-foot coffin submerged in a swimming pool for an hour and a half. Houdini thus at one stroke added the title fakir to his list of appellations and removed a thorn that got stuck beneath his skin a month ago when Rahman Bey, the Egyptian came to town.

Early last July, the Bey, himself a fakir, declared that no ordinary man could stay alive in such a coffin more than a few moments. It took, the Bey said, a man who could put himself in a hypnotic trance. When these matters had been properly impressed upon the general public, the Bey went into a trance and was placed in a coffin and lowered into the East River.

Nineteen minutes after the submersion the telephone bell connected with the coffin with the breath-batted outside world rang. The coffin was hauled up. The Bey was still in his trance, or so it appeared. On a subsequent attempt the Bey remained in the coffin for an hour. It is said that Houdini snored on both occasions. At any rate, yesterday morning, he, followed closely by James Collins, his personal representative and several reporters, went to the swimming pool of the Hotel Shelton on Broadway.

There a galvanized coffin was pronounced airtight by those who examined it. Houdini, clad in white shirt and dark trunks, stepped inside, and the thing was soldered tight. It was lowered to the bottom of the pool and six bathers volunteered to sit on it.

Communicate by Telephone. Collins stood at the edge of the pool, holding a telephone connected with another telephone and a signal bell inside the coffin. Every five minutes Collins would ask "How are you?" Conserving his breath, Houdini would push the button and ring the bell for answer.

After an hour and a quarter Houdini announced "It's leaking," meaning, it was supposed, the casket.

A few minutes later Collins asked if Houdini could "make it." "I don't know," came the answer, and after that the inquiries and the ringing answers were repeated each 20 seconds.

About three minutes before the casket was brought to the surface Houdini reported "I'm getting a little numb down here."

When he had somewhat revived, Houdini said: "There is nothing supernatural about it at all. We are all human. I am an ordinary man. The casket is not airtight, but it is airtight. You don't have to go into any 'trance' to do it. The trick is to take short, even breaths of the air already in there. In that way you conserve it. This ought to be a good thing for miners and such people who work underground to know."

McConnell said that after two or three minutes two ordinary men, breathing in the casket all the oxygen would have been used up.

MOTHER FOUND SLAIN, SON HELD FOR CRIME. He Sits Babbling by Strangled Corpse at Springfield, Mass., Home.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Etta S. Bearse, 50 years old, divorced wife of Count T. Bearse, was found murdered in her home here early today. Richard C. Bearse, 26 years old, her son, was placed under arrest charged with murder. He told a rambling, incoherent story. Mrs. Bearse's death apparently was due to strangulation.

A neighbor telephoned the police reporting sounds of violence in the Bearse home. Officers forced their way into the house and found Mrs. Bearse seated on the floor by her husband's body, moaning and shouting incoherently.

He said that his mother "had died twice in the night," and that he had revived her both times. Marks on the body he explained as having been made "to cleanse her soul from sin."

The young man had lately returned from spending a week at a shore resort. The elder Bearse said today that he saw his son late yesterday and at that time the youth complained of loss of sleep. Mr. and Mrs. Bearse were divorced 14 years ago, but Mrs. Bearse and her son had continued to occupy the house owned by the elder Bearse.

CHECKS UP WEALTHY IDLERS. Not More Than 1000 in Britain Have Incomes of $50,000. Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Publisher Publishing Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch).

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Not more than 1000 idle able-bodied persons of wealth in Great Britain have incomes exceeding $50,000 a year from investments, according to Sir Josiah Stamp, economist, who addressed the British association yesterday.

If all the incomes in Great Britain in excess of $2500 a year were pooled, he said, and the present tax deducted, the remainder distributed among the whole people would not give more than $1.25 to each family.

Maximum Acceleration and no flooding

Every Texaco pump now dispenses the new and better Texaco Gasoline.

Wet gas is a mixture of atomized liquid gasoline globules and vapor. Wet gas floods certain cylinders at the expense of others. It chokes the power and gives a characteristic "drag" on quick acceleration.

Dry gas is a completely vaporized mixture of gasoline and air with no liquid globules. It is a perfect motor fuel. Dry gas equalizes cylinder distribution and gives maximum acceleration without flooding.

THE noticeably livelier acceleration you get with the new Texaco Gasoline is the immediate evidence of its better engine work.

Texaco accelerates to the maximum without flooding, and this capacity for acceleration is an indication of its other qualities—its quicker start, improved mileage with a leaner carburetor setting, increased power for hill work, smoother engine operation, freedom from carbon and fouled spark plugs, and reduced crankcase dilution.

Carburetor adjustment is not essential—you will get better results in any event, but still better with the lean mixture that the new and better Texaco makes possible.

The new Texaco, due to its low boiling point and its better balanced distillation range, vaporizes completely at a lower temperature and goes into the cylinders as a dry gas—the same in every cylinder. The ability to form a dry gas in the manifold is its most distinguishing characteristic. Texaco vaporizes where other gasolines only atomize.

The new and better Texaco contains no added chemicals. It needs none. Its anti-knock quality is obtained without the addition of dopes or poison. Every Texaco pump provides it—and it is always uniform wherever you get it.

HAWES AND WILLIAMS MAINTAIN THEIR LEADS

Pluralities of U. S. Senate Nominees Remain Approximately 56,000 and 85,000.

A few primary election returns which trickled in today from rural precincts make little change in the previously announced figures on the senatorial races. Harry B. Hawes' lead of Judge Ewing Cockrell for the Democratic nomination remaining at approximately 56,000, and that of Senator Williams over David M. Proctor for the Republican nomination at approximately 85,000.

The latest totals were:
For the long term, Democratic: 3467 of the 4095 precincts in the State gave Hawes 146,420. Cockrell 89,928. Young 26,210, a plurality of 56,494, and a majority of 31,233 for Hawes.

For the short term, Democratic: 3095 precincts reporting gave Hawes 124,894. Meredith 75,247. Young 25,298, a plurality of 49,647, and a majority of 24,849 for Hawes.

For the long term, Republican: 3365 precincts reporting gave Williams 160,260. Proctor 75,448. Priest 46,400, a plurality of 84,812 and a majority of 38,412 for Williams.
For the short term, Republican: Williams 172,128 and Priest 83,499, a majority of 108,629 for Williams. It is not probable that many additional returns will be received until the official count is made.

STATEMENT BY BLODGETT PRIEST SMACKS OF BOLT

Vote for Candidates Without Equivocation on Wet Issue Says Defeated Foe of Williams.

W. Blodgett Priest, defeated "wet" candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the primary Tuesday, yesterday issued a statement strongly suggestive of leadership in a bolt from Senator Williams, Republican nominee, unless Williams takes a position definitely wet.

Priest advised those who supported him to "give their votes to those men who are without equivocation on this subject."

Asked whether he intended to vote for Congressman Hawes, Democratic nominee, who favors modification of the Volstead Act, Priest replied: "You have my statement," and refused to discuss the matter further.

Issues Prepared Statement.
"I have been asked to define my position relative to the fall election," Priest said in his prepared statement.

"I am a Republican and have been so since I was able to cast my first ballot. I see no reason for changing my politics."

"I got into the race for the senatorial nomination on the Republican side of my own volition and without consultation or agreement with anybody. I did so because I am strongly opposed to the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. I hoped by my candidacy to give those who felt as I did an opportunity to express their views at the polls."

"The Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act constitute the most vicious piece of legislation that has ever been devised and passed since the adoption of our present Constitution. It is opposed to the principles of our Constitution and the spirit of our people and their political institutions, and unless something is done to correct this evil, it will, as surely as the sun shines, undermine the moral strength and fiber of our nation."

Urges Followers to Be Firm.
"The voters that were sympathetic enough to confirm my views by going to the polls and voting for me last Tuesday should not deviate one iota from a stern purpose to vote their principles at every opportunity they get, for it is only by such steadfast and persistent effort we can accomplish the desired result."

"The more than 70,000 voters that voted for me and against the Volstead act last Tuesday, in the Republican primary, should give their votes at the coming election, as a body, to those men who are without equivocation on this subject, and who, in their opinion, best merit their support and confidence."

ALLEGED SAN FRANCISCO MAIL ROBBER TAKEN IN LONDON
Harry Sullivan, 24, Captured by Scotland Yard, Arrives on Steamer to Face Trial.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Harry Sullivan, 24-year-old youth, arrested in London and wanted in San Francisco in connection with a $100,000 mail robbery in 1924, arrived on the President Roosevelt yesterday in custody of C. M. Christiansen, United States Postoffice Inspector from San Francisco.

Sullivan, who was arrested by a Scotland Yard detective June 10, on suspicion of being an accomplice of Jim McCraig of Sydney, Australia, internationally known criminal, was identified by fingerprints forwarded to San Francisco.

Inspector Christiansen was sent to England and obtained an extradition warrant charging Sullivan with the mail truck holdup in conjunction with four companions, who are now serving aggregate sentences of more than 100 years in Fort Leavenworth.

The inspector said Sullivan toured all the principal cities of Europe, Canada and Australia, after he became a fugitive. He will be taken before a United States Commissioner today.

Seven Mile, Ohio, Feb. 13.—"I am a farmer and am out-of-doors all my working hours. During harvest time last year, I became badly sunburned about the face, neck and arms. They were so irritated and pained so intensely I could hardly stand anything touching them. I tried various remedies, but nothing did me any good until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. I was relieved by the first application and by the time the first jar of ointment and cake of soap were gone my sunburn had vanished. I am always a booster for Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment." AUGUST! Month of outdoor fun—delightful meals in the open—cooking over the embers! The month of tourists, campers, hikers and old-fashioned picnickers!

After a cooling ride—a dip in the water—a long tramp—everything tastes good. In fact, we have such hearty appetites in the open that sometimes I think we are guilty of dietary errors that we would not think of committing in our own kitchens.

And yet—just as well balanced meals may be prepared out of doors as at home. And it is just as important. It takes a little planning, that's all.

Suppose you are going on a week's motor trip. Plan your week's meals in advance as much as possible and provide such equipment as you will need. You will probably wish to take a two-burner camp stove. Some experienced campers advise a small fireless cooker. Others take a large vacuum container to keep foods hot or cold.

It's part of the fun of touring to do your marketing along the way. Fresh vegetables and fruits never taste as good as they do fresh from garden and orchard along the roadside. Along many of the highways the most inviting looking stands are put up by the farmers and there they sell fruits, vegetables, home-canned delicacies, butter and eggs.

Carry with you cans of staples, such as flour, coffee, sugar, crackers, oatmeal, one package of banana and cans of evaporated milk. Add to these a stock of canned goods for emergencies.

A typical camp menu, easy to prepare and meeting all the requirements might be such as this: Breakfast: Fresh fruit, ready-to-serve cereal with milk, bacon, rolls, coffee.

Luncheon: Sandwiches prepared after breakfast and wrapped in waxed paper, coffee from breakfast kept hot in vacuum bottle, fresh tomatoes, canned or fresh fruit, small cakes from package, milk for children.

DOUST! Month of outdoor fun—delightful meals in the open—cooking over the embers! The month of tourists, campers, hikers and old-fashioned backwoodsmen!

After a cooling ride—a dip in the water—a long tramp—everything tastes good. In fact, we have such hearty appetites in the open that sometimes I think we are guilty of dietary errors that we would not think of committing in our own kitchens.

Just as well balanced meals may be prepared out of doors as at home. And it is just as important, too. It takes a little planning, that's all.

You will probably wish to take a two-burner camp stove. Some experienced campers advise a small fireless cooker. Others take a large vacuum container to keep foods hot or cold.

It's part of the fun of touring to do your marketing along the way. Fresh vegetables and fruits never taste as good as they do fresh from garden and orchard along the roadside. Along many of the highways the most inviting looking stands are put up by the farmers and there they sell fruits, vegetables, home-canned delicacies, butter and eggs.

Carry with you cans of staples, such as flour, coffee, sugar, crackers, oatmeal, one package of baked beans, one package of ready-to-serve cereal and cans of evaporated milk. Add to these a stock of canned goods for emergencies.

A typical camp menu, easy to prepare and meeting all the requirements might be such as this: Breakfast: Fresh fruit, ready-to-serve cereal with milk, bacon, rolls, coffee.

Luncheon: Sandwiches prepared after breakfast and wrapped in oil paper, coffee from breakfast kept hot in vacuum bottle, fresh tomatoes, canned or fresh fruit, small cakes from package, milk for children.

Dinner: Camp stew (meat with vegetables), sliced tomatoes with lettuce, peach shortcake, rolls with butter, hot chocolate. (Fish instead of meat if in camp where you are fishing.)

Or, suppose your summer holiday will be snatched here and there, one out-door meal at a time, then let me suggest these two tasty camp dishes.

First: Arrange alternately pieces of lamb and tomato slices on a skewer and broil over the embers. Remove to slices of toast or bread. Add to this menu a cold salad brought from home, fresh fruit, a piece of cake, a cup of coffee and you have an "out-door meal" that is satisfying and complete.

Second: Broil beefsteak on bacon rack or frying pan. Insert a piece of steak between slices of toast with a layer of water cress. Serve with this sliced tomatoes and lettuce, fresh or canned fruit add chilled gingerale.

These are only suggestions of a few of the food combinations that may be had without too much effort and without disastrous effects on the digestion.

Orange Refrigerator Pudding.
Use one-fourth cup butter, one cup powdered sugar, four tablespoons chopped walnuts, two tablespoons chopped dates, juice and pulp of two oranges, two cups cake crumbs or crushed macaroons, Maraschino cherries and one sponge cake.

Cream the butter and sugar, add the nuts, dates, oranges. Let stand 15 minutes. Add the cake crumbs gradually. When all crumbs are added beat the mixture vigorously. Spread this mixture on top of sponge cake and garnish with the cherries. Place in icebox for 24 hours. Serve plain or with whipped cream. This pudding is improved by standing and will keep four or five days on ice.

tablespoon salt has been added. In the morning put on to cook in cold water and heat to boiling point. Drain and cook slices in syrup made by heating together 2 pounds sugar and quart of water for 10 minutes. Add to syrup sliced lemons, oranges and cloves. Boil until watermelon is tender.

PLANNING MENUS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Balanced Meals and Nourishing
Food Are Good Health Helps.

THIS week we are continuing the practice noted in plans for last week. The mid-summer fruits are used freely as are the vegetables such as watercress, lettuce and cucumbers. These, as most of our readers probably know, by this time, are especially valuable in maintaining the alkalinity of the diet.

Because of the fact that vegetable dinners have appeared frequently during the past weeks, we are this week offering only two, although with a plentiful supply of vegetables at the various meals.

Although not noted in the menus themselves, provision has been made to serve certain standard foods cold instead of warm. For example, the flaked fish soufflé is cold and at other meals where broths are served this may be, if desired, served in the form of jelly. Meat broths can be prepared in such a way that the entire jelly of the meat will accomplish this. Vegetable broths may be jellied by the addition of gelatin during their preparation. It is this judicious variation of the menus as planned that determines their success. At best, one set of menus can be used merely as a general guide.

It will be noticed that on Thursday frozen fruit salad is served at luncheon. Variations of these frozen salads offer another admirable way of introducing flexibility into the weekly meal plan as a whole. Desserts for the most part should be light such as the whips, junkets and creams of which we have made frequent use throughout the week.

Although the classical strawberry shortcake is the most palatable form of this truly American dish, mid-summer fruits may be stewed

Milk Has a Vital Place in The Summer Food Program

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I HAVE told you in a former article of a sign I saw in a Western city on a great billboard: "Cool, refreshing milk should have first place in your summer diet."

Summer diet is always a puzzle. You know you need food and yet no particular dish makes any real appeal to your appetite. Here is where cool, refreshing milk has its place.

Summer foods should be different from winter foods. You need heat-producing materials, at least not in winter quantities. Your energies are not exerted to quite the same in summer. Of course, if you play tennis, or some other strenuous game, the energy-developing foods are needed even in hot weather. Most of us, however, are lazy in summer and so energy-production is not so important.

But you make some demands upon your muscles, even though you are not working hard. The foods that are capable of supplying the muscle-building material needed may be supplied in attractive forms.

It is unfortunate that most people regard milk as a beverage. They do not realize it is one of the most important foods, the most important food, indeed. When it's real value is appreciated by everybody it will be more largely consumed.

Children are sensitive about being considered babies. They come to look upon milk as a food for babies, and, unless sensibly dealt with, will refuse to drink it.

The best way I know of to prevent this obstinate stand against milk is to have it made the common drink of the grown-ups in the family. When they see father or mother taking a glass of milk it won't be hard to get the little folks to include it in the regular diet. Men born on the farm, no matter where they later roam, are likely to be milk drinkers. The habit of early life persists. It is an excellent habit to cultivate. If men and women, as well as children, would take more milk and less of some other things, there would be a healthier race.

One of the most important of all the minerals is lime, especially if presented in a form readily absorbable by the system. Milk is rich in lime and in such form that it goes on its way at once, furnishing to the bones and teeth the fibers of the body, the substance they need for their growth and strength.

The muscles and other structures making up the framework and bulk of the body must have protein food. Milk supplies this in acceptable form.

Vitamins, too, accompany the butter fat. They assist the growth and welfare and promote the health.

Clearness of skin and glow of health are founded on proper feeding. To young and old milk has a vital place in the program of proper feeding. Its use makes for long life and vigor.

CANNED FOOD MEALS
ARE SEASONABLE

Use Canned Goods and Give the Kitchen Stove a Vacation.

Canned food luncheons and dinners are becoming quite popular, according to household economists and others familiar with the trend of affairs in American kitchens. An entire meal, from soup to nuts, ready prepared, being something of a novelty, is getting to be all the rage, not to mention the fact that it is wonderfully convenient for housewives tired of cooking. With canned delicacies on your pantry shelf you can quickly prepare anything from a simple bridge luncheon to an elaborate full-course meal.

Here are some suggested menus for canned goods luncheons and dinners.

1. Pea soup, St. Germain, chicken a la King on toasted muffins, apple pie, toasted wafers rarebit on salted crackers, coffee or tea.

2. Vegetable soup, boned chicken, salad sandwiches and butter sandwiches, wafers rarebit on salted crackers with Bar-le-Duc in center, coffee or tea.

3. Chicken broth with rice, spaghetti Italian, boned chicken on toast, coffee or tea.

4. Chicken noodle soup, creamed bean sprouts on toast, lemon pie, coffee or tea.

5. Jellied tomato bouillon, devilled chicken on salted crackers, chicken liver spread on brown bread, lettuce, pineapple and cream cheese salad, coffee or tea.

Pie Plan.
Line a deep pie pan with pastry. Peel, stone and halve three cups of plums. Mix together one cup of sugar, two tablespoons flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt, sift, and stir well. Add dry ingredients to prepared plums and turn mixture into pie pan. Put on upper crust and bake 50 minutes in a moderate oven.

Hamm's MALT
Dependable

PLEASE do not expect premium milk. The high quality of this world-preferred milk forbids their use.

Carnation Milk
"From Contented Cows"

Tomorrow morning cream the coffee with golden-rich Carnation. Isn't the flavor extra fine? Isn't the color appetizing? Then think of this—Carnation costs two-thirds less than cream.

Carnation is pure, rich milk evaporated to double richness and "homogenized" to give every drop an equal share of the double helping of cream.

Used in cooking, Carnation makes foods richer and tastier, superior in texture and body. It's better and more economical than bottled milk.

Post Toasties
Double-Thick Corn Flakes

Three Wrappings guard their crispness

They're Double-Crisp and Double-Good

Ask for Post Toasties, the Double-Thick corn flakes in the famous red and yellow package

Keep the red and yellow Post Toasties package on your pantry shelf and enjoy these crisp, Double-Thick corn flakes more often. Serve them at breakfast with fresh fruits and berries. Let the children enjoy them between meals. Eat them as a midnight lunch.

Post Toasties are Double-Crisp and Double-Good because they're Double-Thick. They have that delicious, natural corn flavor. Their oven freshness is protected by three wrappings.

Make the Milk or Cream Test for crispness and flavor. Know the luxury of corn flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream.

How to make the test:

Order some Post Toasties at the grocer's or send for a free test package. Open the red and yellow carton and shower some of the golden, crisp flakes into a bowl.

Now add milk or cream and test these Double-Thick corn flakes critically for crispness and flavor.

With the first spoonful you'll experience a new cereal delight. You'll note how even the last few flakes at the bottom of the bowl still hold their delicious crispness.

Note: Be sure you get the genuine Post Toasties in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package. Ask for them by name and look for the Post Toasties Product Seal.

NEW ELECTRIC HELP FOR MODERN WOMAN
Frozen Dishes Can Be Prepared in Electric Refrigerator Trays.

The modern woman derives many benefits from the electric refrigerator which are being installed in the apartment houses and hotels and in private residences.

As a mother she feels safe in letting her children drink ice-cooled water when she knows that the ice is made from pure drinking water in her own refrigerator.

As a hostess she takes delight in being able to offer her guests the many dainties that can be prepared in the early hours of the day and kept in perfect condition in the electric refrigerator.

As a nurse she finds little trouble in filling an ice bag with ice cubes as they come from the refrigerator's ice trays.

As a domestic scientist she knows that dampness as well as warmth tends to spoil most foods and she rejoices that with the electric refrigerating system everything is scientifically kept cool and free of mold for many days.

Summer desserts are easily made and frozen in an electric refrigerator. Very little working time is needed but ample amount of time must be allowed for the cooling process.

The trays should be cold when the mixture is put into them. The length of time for freezing will vary according to the type of mixture used.

Several recipes for dishes which can be frozen in the electric refrigerator will serve to illustrate how almost any frozen dish may be easily prepared in the modern electric refrigerator.

BROILED CHICKEN SEASONABLE
Build the Company Dinner Around This Delicacy.

ROILED spring chicken will always be numbered among the company dishes. It is the most popular main dish for banquets and club festivities and it likewise holds its own at home company dinners and suppers.

There are two main ways of broiling chicken. Southern broiled chicken and oven broiled chicken; the methods differ but slightly.

Oven Broiled Chicken.
Slit a young broiler, split it down the back, clean, wash and quickly wipe it dry. Brush the skin side with butter, dust with salt and pepper.

Place the oven pre-heated for five minutes, then put chicken.

bone side down, on upper rack with dripping pan underneath. Keep oven very hot for 15 minutes, then cool to medium heat for one-half hour, when chicken will be ready to serve.

Southern Broiled Chicken.
Clean very young chicken, singe, split down back. Season with salt and pepper, brush with butter. Have the broiler ready over a moderate fire; let the fowl broil slow for half hour, or a little longer if not so tender. Turn once in a while to broil both sides. Serve hot on heated dish garnished with parsley or lettuce leaves with melted butter poured over.

Something Unusual.
For delicious lettuce rolls take one-half cup cottage cheese, three tablespoons minced parsley, two tablespoons grated onion, one-fourth cup chopped green peppers, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one head of lettuce.

Mix cottage cheese with minced parsley, grated onion, and finely chopped green pepper; season with salt and pepper. Chill thoroughly. Place two tablespoons of cheese mixture in a leaf of crisp lettuce and roll up lightly. Serve with dressing.

MAKE TOMATO RELISH FOR WINTER USE

This Appetizer Is Popular Addition to Meat and Fish Meals.

This recipe is for a tomato butter that will keep indefinitely. The whole secret is the elder vinegar. Take several pounds of ripe tomatoes that have been peeled and sliced, three pounds of sugar, a pint of clear vinegar, one ounce of whole cloves and one ounce of cinnamon. Boil three hours, and during the last two hours stir almost constantly. If made in this way the tomato butter will keep for years, even without being canned.

Sweet Relish.
Two chopped sweet peppers, three cups minced celery, one cup vinegar, one and one-quarter cups sugar, one chopped hot pepper, one dozen ripe tomatoes, one tablespoon salt, one-half teaspoon each broken cinnamon, whole cloves, mustard seed, celery seed and allspice. The girls stirred all the vegetables in a large kettle; added the vinegar, spices and salt and sugar. The spices they were careful to tie in a small bit of cheese cloth before adding to the mixture. The whole was brought to the boiling point and allowed to boil for two hours and then sealed in sterilized jars while boiling.

Tomato Preserves.
Slice tomatoes; add whole cloves and cook gently for forty-five minutes. Put through sieve; add sugar and boil five minutes, then add lemon juice and cook until thick like soft butter.

Corn Tomato Chowder.
Place two cupsful of canned corn, one cupful of canned tomatoes, one cupful of diced celery, and one teaspoon salt in a kettle. Cover with four cupsful of cold water and simmer gently one-half hour. In another saucepan melt two tablespoonsful of butter, then add two tablespoonsful of flour and mix until a smooth paste. Then add one and three-fourths cups of evaporated milk diluted with three-fourths cup water gradually, while stirring constantly. When smooth, add the vegetable mixture a little at a time and season to taste. Then add one-half cupful of grated cheese and one green pepper chopped fine. Stir until the cheese is melted. Serve piping hot.

Use Cheese.
As a variation of summer vegetable meals, try combinations of cooked vegetables with cheese. For example, vegetable fritters of baked vegetable scalloped dishes may be served with cheese sauce and the food value of the dish thereby increased considerably. When American cheese is used in a white sauce to appear over vegetables certain precautions are necessary. The cheese should be dry enough to grate if possible. Tiny bits are then added very carefully to the hot cream sauce and stirred in slowly so that there will be no stringy particles. In fact, it is quite possible to add cheese in this way to white sauce so skillfully that the resulting mixture will be literally as smooth as cream.

Put marmalade between two slices of bread and crisp in the oven for summer afternoon tea sandwiches.

WAYS OF PEELING TOMATOES

WAYS OF PEELING TOMATOES
Often Necessary to Skin Vegetable.
If the tomato has fully ripened the skin will often strip off without any preliminary treatment. Sometimes scraping the surface all over with the dull edge of a knife will loosen the skin so that it can be pulled off. But usually the scalding method must be employed. There are objections to this method, for, if the tomato is a large overripe or if scalded too long, it becomes softened, thus spoiling the shape and causing a loss of weight; also the scalding method, when if the cold plunge, follows the scalding, means that the tomato must be chilled again if it is wanted crisp.
However, these objections can be overcome to a great extent. Leave the tomato in the hot water only long enough to loosen the skin. Usually the skin cracks or breaks so that one can tell that this point has been reached. Then drain and plunge into very cold water. Again drain and place in the icebox to chill. By leaving the skins on until chilling has been accomplished you keep the tomato firmer and it stands handling better. Then, too, if not used at once the skin prevents the surface of the tomato from becoming watery and queer looking, as is the case with skinned tomatoes after standing for some time.

Banana Blanche.
Line sherbert glasses with slices of bananas. Fill with ice cream. Decorate with whipped cream sprinkled with grated cocoanut.

YEAST FURNISHES VITAMINS
For centuries past, yeast has been used in bread-making. Now modern science has discovered its value as a food, because it offers vitamins which are necessary to health.
Yeast also tones up the intestinal muscles so that normal healthy activity is established and the body kept free from poisonous waste.
Mothers are feeding yeast to their children, in the period of childhood, from 5 to 16 years of age, when such tremendous energy is expended in physical activity. Yeast acts as a natural vitalizer. It helps protect from the numerous diseases children are subject to; and it safeguards against that slavery to skin, stomach and intestinal troubles which has enchained so many adults.

There are many ways of serving yeast and of eating it. Many persons like it best with a sprinkle of salt or just plain, nibbled from the cake. Others take it in water or in fruit juice. Yeast dissolves easily in any beverage.
Yeast may be used as a spread on plain crackers, on toast or bread. It may also be combined with spreads like peanut butter or jams or crushed fruit spreads. Others dissolve it in a glass of fresh milk which may be either hot or cold.

Girl Riding on Motor Cycle Hurt.
Miss Louise Arnold, 17 years old, of 1212 Chouteau avenue, suffered a fractured left leg and ankle and possible internal injuries at 12:30

a. m. today when a motor cycle on which she was riding with Roy Smith, 20, of 6103 South Broadway, collided with a Carondelet Police District automobile at Courtis street and South Broadway. Sgt. Charles Kelly, in charge of the police machine, arrested Smith for driving without lights. Smith was only slightly hurt. He said his lights went out on Lemay Ferry road and he was driving home to fix them.

How Dry Are the States First to Cast Prohibition Before Now the West

From Iowa to Idaho the Record Drink and Easy to Get—worthy Figures in the Eighteenth Amendment.

THIS is the first article of a series dealing with prohibition in the so-called dry States in the North and Middle West. It deals in outline with conditions in Kansas, Minnesota, Iowa, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Montana and Idaho. Each will be discussed in detail in articles to follow.

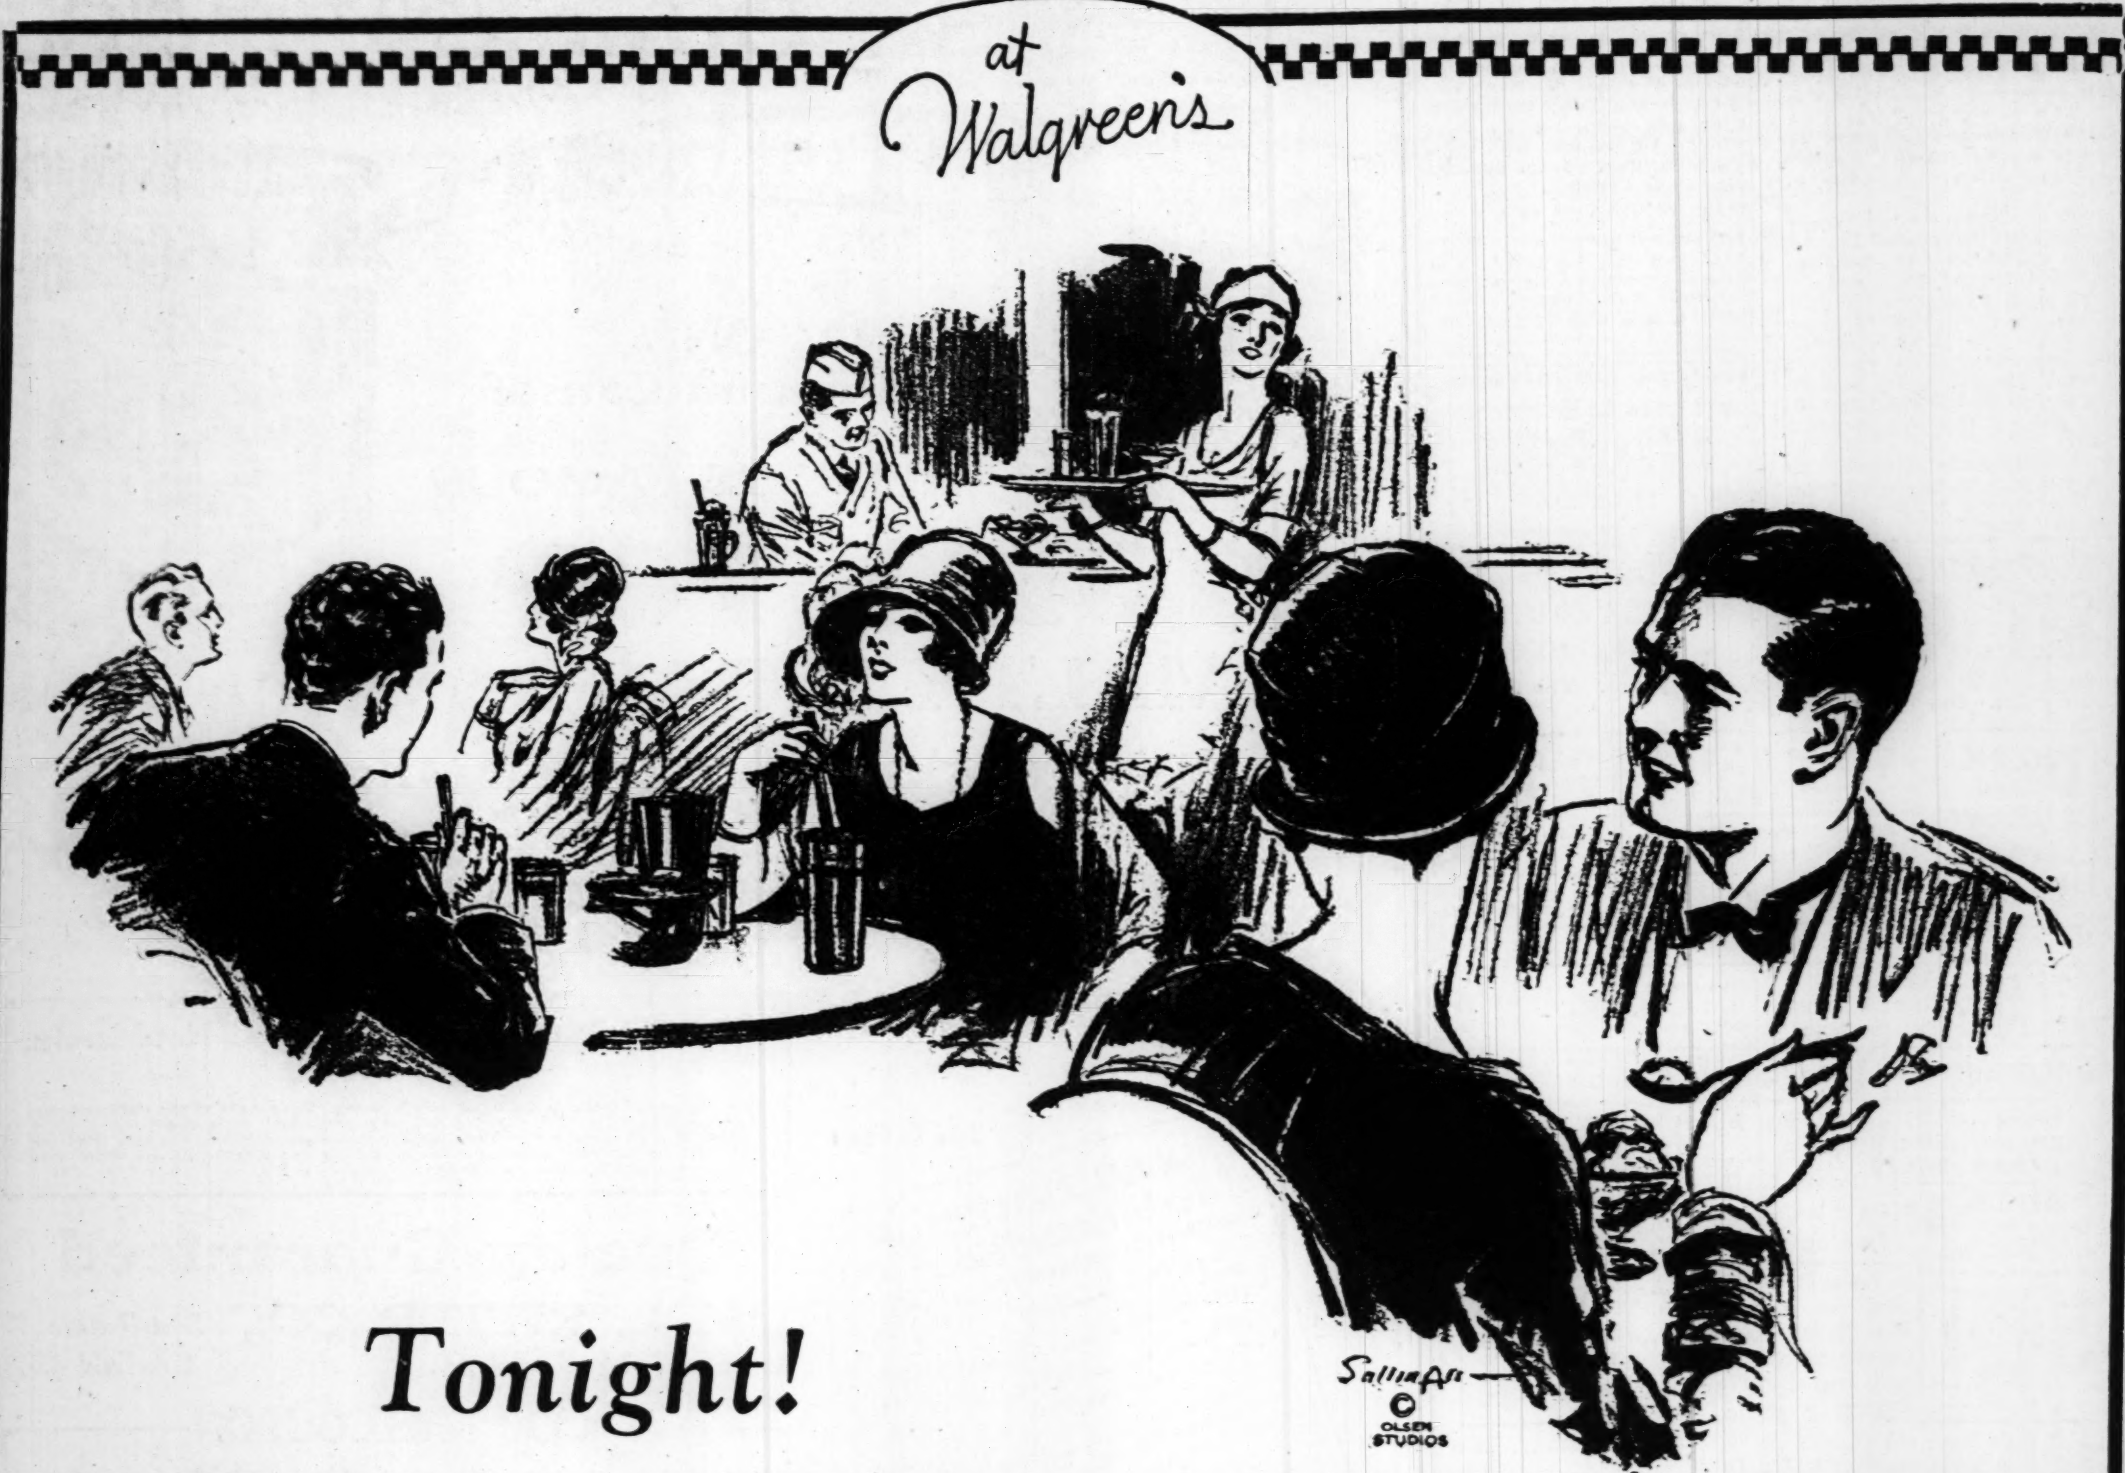

(Copyright, 1926.)
TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 6.—The subject of these articles might be Moonshine, the Spirit of the West. In other phrase more aptly summarizes the picture left upon the mind of one beyond the Mississippi to examine at close range the manner in which their inhabitants have accepted or rejected prohibition. It is to be borne in mind that these states—Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Idaho—include the additional backbone of the national movement; that all of them, excepting Minnesota and Wyoming, had tagged of the severest kind of prohibition years before the advent of the Volstead act, and their progress has been taken for granted generally.

It may be said that their dryness, whatever it may have been in the past, is today purely a myth. On the face of the trans-mississippian shake hands with his Eastern neighbor on a footing of fullest equality, and in many instances may give the latter cards and spades without endangering in the slightest his pocket. Bootlegging and denigration of the Volstead law are common out in the wide open spaces. One finds liquor everywhere from pocket to boudoir. The flask is as general use as the cigarette. The cocktail shaker is a regular gift and is displayed in large numbers in big and small stores and restaurants. The most storied haven of the western six-shooter, is now the scene of a kick of a different order. The polished bar, the brass and the white-coated bartender are to be found in many a town. "We're stiff and sobered wire." There are lively times in the city saloons, where the proprietors have been compelled to install bottle openers to save the establishment's furniture. The rich man purchases more of character and invites his friends to enjoy them with him. The less fortunate have their "barbed wire"—as the flaming alcoholic mixtures are known in the land of alfalfa.

There are complaints enough about indulging youngsters in and out of school, as the newspaper men have railed against the immoderate use of stimulants by the students. Perhaps the Westerner does not do his tipping as blatantly as certain Eastern communities. He often he quaffs his "thunder" in quiet nooks, in dimly lighted and shaded back rooms or in the security of his home.

But this fact stands out: there is lack of strong beverages at his disposal in any part of this country, and he uses them lavishly. The man under discussion here have made the business of the rum runner comparatively safe. At many a tavern and filling station, at soft-drink parlor and garage, one need only drop a hint to have the bracer produced.

Women as Bootleggers.
Every town has its rum row, every village its bootleggers, and as men as not they are women. This one of the amazing facts about traffic in the Middle West. Women are to be found playing prominent parts in every phase of the trade. They take the order. They operate stills. Pretty young girls say they find it an easy way to make money. Mothers of large families maintain stills in the only way they can. They are everywhere. They farm in valleys, over mountain ranges and along river banks. Moonshine is dripping from the worm-eaten that slept for decades undisturbed. If it is true that the country has "put the dry regions have" "put the dry amendment over on" the city chaps, the rural districts are as different to the Volstead philosophy as the citizens of New York. One of their number expressed "Those that want it get it and make it." Permenaters are found on many farms, the corn crop is often but an important adjunct to the distillation plant, the homestead frequently has been turned into a roadhouse and the Saturday night barn dance, that traditional rural entertainment of the rural community, in many instances has become a drinking orgy. Nor must be the Associated Press.—LONDON, Aug. 6.—A definition of the British and Italian spheres of economic influence in Abyssinia is contained in the recently signed Anglo-Italian agreement to which exception has been made of an appeal to the League of Nations by Italy.

The agreement, which is looked upon as something after the fashion of foreign dealings with China, also pledges the two countries to support one another in furthering proposals to the Abyssinian Government.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—A tiny vial containing cosmetics used by Tutankhamen 3300 years ago, found in the alabaster coffer in the tomb, was produced today at the British Association meeting at Oxford by Chaston Chapman, an eminent chemist, to whom the stuff had been entrusted for analysis.

Scientists of both sexes sniffed eagerly at the vial, which gave off a strong odor of coconut. But Chapman said that analysis had progressed far enough to make

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 6.—On the home farm again for a few days, President Coolidge is renewing old ties and visiting familiar scenes. Government business has been thrust into the background. Friends and neighbors say they find him unchanged.

The rich man purchases goods of character and invites his friends to enjoy them with him. The less fortunate have their "wife"—as the flaming alcohols are known in the saloons.

There are complaints enough of indulging youngsters in and out of school, as the newspaper will bear witness, and college boys are particularly guilty. The state use of stimulants is not new. Spain's Demand Unaltered. When the Reorganization Committee adjourned in May, it presented the so-called Cecil compromise, which was intended to furnish semipermanent seats to Brazil and Spain. Subsequently, Brazil refrom Abyssinia the right to construct a dam at Lake Tsana, with a view to storing its waters for use in the Blue Nile. Italy may have British support in seeking a concession to build a railway across Abyssinia from Eritrea in the north to Italian Somaliland, in the south. On the other hand, it also is possible that Spain's insistence will draw the League of Nations Executive Assembly convenes, leaving the way clear for Germany's entrance.

In Colorado, for instance, a citizen of high station corrected the printer, "But you don't know that this state went bone dry by popu-

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Having disclosed, during two months of investigation, expenditures of $3,000,000 in Pennsylvania's May primary and $1,000,000 in the Illinois April primary, the Reed campaign fund investigating committee of the Senate is now in adjournment, subject to the call of its chairman, Senator Reed of Missouri.

Affairs of the Anti-Saloon League, national and State, also have bulked large in the inquiries. The investigators learned yesterday that the Illinois dry organization is active in primaries, general elections and in attempts to influence the State Legislature.

MRS. ROSS FOR VICE PRESIDENT

By the Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 6.—Gov. Brewster, arriving home last night from Wyoming where he attended the Governors' conference of which he was re-elected president, declared that Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming was the best Democratic candidate for the vice presidency if the party's presidential candidate is chosen from the East.

The principal witnesses yesterday, Schuyler told of disburasing $32,000 for Inaull on behalf of Smith's candidacy and of giving $5600 of his own money for Smith's campaign. He said he declined to say whether he had distributed large sums for Inaull to candidates other than those in the race for the senatorial nomination.

Safford was taken over much of the afternoon by Reed. He conceded that the Illinois Antislavery League sought to influence primaries, elections, and the Legislature, admitting that he was a "paid lobbyist" working for dry laws and against wet ones. Safford also claimed his undertaking was "honorary" work as any man could engage in.

We Need the Money.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The Friday issue of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch contains a statement of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of one of the Evangelical churches. It is concerned with the present economic prosperity of the United States and devotes space to the moral rights of America in the present debt controversy existing between America, the creditor, and certain foreign nations, the debtor. The article and some of its contentions are provocative of thought. Questions are raised which find difficult to answer.

When the moral right of America is referred to, should not the term be defined, if indeed any intelligence or authority this side of omniscience and omnipotence can do so? Why has the Government of the United States "no moral right" to subsidize European taxpayers with money taken from the pockets of Americans as long as Europeans are spending for drink sums which in a few years would discharge the American debt? If America has no such moral right, then she certainly ought to protest against foreigners spending their depreciated coinage upon luxuries like cognac, cosmetics, cold and vanishing creams, marcel and permanent waves, manicuring, pedicuring and plucked eyebrows until the masses pay their honest debts. Have we the moral right to permit Pierre to indulge even in an occasional spin in a taxi, to take Marie for a ride on the Seine or to the top of the Eiffel Tower while he owes us our hard-earned dollars? And what about his going to the opera, the theater, the picture show and having dessert with dinner? Ought he to be allowed to smoke? Have we the moral right to wink at European waste of money on any of these things?

Dr. Wilson and his committee do not go far enough. Their report touches only the periphery of European extravagance. A more careful scrutiny of our moral rights would certainly demonstrate that we have no moral right to sanction the smallest expenditure of lira, franc, florin or shilling by the foreigner for anything except the bare necessities of life until he has paid back to moral and abstemious America what is her moral right to demand. Furthermore, Americans need the money to pay their bootleggers' bills.

POSTSCRIPT.

Errors and Omissions.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
LIBRARIES bind the home editions of newspapers, and since many of the typographical errors that appear in these editions are corrected in the following editions, I would like to suggest to libraries that they buy final editions for this purpose, or that publishers of newspapers present to libraries said final editions. In this way, many typographical errors will be avoided, and the reputation of this era for inaccuracy will be more safely guarded against.

Newspapers must be out on time, and in the haste that constitutes their publication it is practically an impossibility not to have some errors. While it may be true the newspapers of other eras have had fewer typographical errors than the newspapers of today, still, these papers had fewer sections to them, and their circulation was not so extensive.

MARIE G. EWING.

Order at the Polls.

WHAT has become of the old-fashioned primary riots and polling-place acts of intimidation and fraud? The fact passes almost without comment, that the primary was free from any serious disorder, or any charge of wrongful acts by the police, election officials or candidates. People have become accustomed to decent and orderly elections, as in the past they were accustomed to intimidation, fraud and ruffianism.

What has wrought the change? Chiefly, better election laws, administered honestly and capably by the present Election Board and its predecessor, and a Police Board which insists on fairness and order, without favoritism to any party or candidate. We cannot "make men better by law," but just laws, honestly enforced, can and do improve the conditions under which men conduct their political affairs. Gov. Baker and former Gov. Hyde should receive their share of credit for the improvement in election conditions.

Contributing factors are the participation of women, and the large number of voters in the primary, which makes intimidation and fraud more difficult, and less likely to affect the result, than in the past. While our voters do not show sufficient interest in the primary, still the numbers voting are far larger, and the returns more difficult of manipulation, than in the little so-called primaries of the old convention days.

PRIEST STANDS BY HIS CAUSE.

What could an honest man who is fighting for principle do except what W. Blodgett Priest has done in his statement regarding the primary election, in which he was a candidate for the United States senatorial nomination on the Republican ticket?

Mr. Priest declares that he regards "the eighth amendment and the Volstead act the most vicious piece of legislation that has ever been devised and passed since the adoption of our present Constitution. It is opposed to the principles of our Constitution, the spirit of our people and their political institutions, and unless something is done to correct this evil it will, as surely as the sun shines, undermine the moral strength and fiber of our nation."

It is undermining the moral strength and fiber of the nation. It is undermining all rights, state and individual, and all liberty. It is the prolific cause of lawlessness and disorder. Believing it to be the paramount issue, Mr. Priest went into the primary campaign upon this issue, standing openly and courageously upon the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, in opposition to prohibition. He made an honest, brave fight and polled an extraordinary vote, considering his lack of money and organization, his newness in politics and the partisan and political considerations that worked against him.

In a fight for principle, personal defeat is only an incident. It is a milestone in the march to the ultimate goal. The cause is the big thing. Mr. Priest gracefully accepts his defeat, but stands by his cause. He says he will continue to fight for a return to constitutional free government, the restoration of the rights and powers of the states that have been usurped by the Federal Government, and the preservation of individual rights and personal liberty. That is a cause worth fighting for. It can not be won by spasmodic efforts and occasional candidacies. It must be won by persistent effort, firm purpose and continued balloting for those only who stand for the cause.

So Mr. Priest, putting principle above party, as all honest, high-minded citizens must do in a crisis, calls upon the voters who followed his lead to stand together as a unit for candidates who stand with them. He says:

The more than 70,000 voters that voted for me and against the Volstead act last Tuesday in the Republican primary should give their votes at the coming election, as a body, to those men who are without equivocation on this subject, and who, in their opinion, best merit their support and confidence.

This is a courageous, forceful statement. It is a convincing appeal to all those who followed Mr. Priest's banner of liberty. The 60,000 or 70,000 voters who voted for the cause represented by Mr. Priest can assure victory in Missouri for their cause by following his counsel. Their votes would assure the election of only men who stand with them.

The Post-Dispatch is carrying this banner of constitutional rights and liberty. We believe the cause is just and is worth heavy sacrifices to win. We invite all those who stand with us in defense of local self-government, constitutional rights and personal liberty to rally to it.

JUDGE COCKRELL'S GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP.

In his letter of congratulation to Mr. Hawes, for whom he admitted throughout the campaign only the friendliest personal feelings, Judge Ewing Cockrell set an example in good sportsmanship of the sort which Missouri Democrats have needed for a long time.

Except when the Democrats are divided among themselves, which they usually are, Missouri is a Democratic State. If the example set by Judge Cockrell is generally followed and old scores are to be forgotten, the Democrats can retrieve it.

The country needs the Democratic party, and unless we are mistaken it is going to say so next November in rather decisive terms. Despite the ease with which the Republicans won the last national election, their tenure is not such as particularly pleases anybody but the big business interests which bought the election for them. The Government is too commercial and one-sided. The people are in revolt, and their resentment will fall heavily upon Republicans running for office this year.

Missouri Democrats have a responsibility in this matter. They owe the party a loyalty which transcends every personal consideration. This was the message taken into the State by Mr. Hawes in his primary campaign. It bore its first fruit in the Cockrell letter.

Probably what Al Smith really did ask the President was who this Paul Smith is.

HOT WEATHER IMPEDIMENTA.

They have had unusually hot weather in Europe, including England, where the heat caused a bewigged Judge to doff his mass of powdered curls and his long gown and appear in undignified "civies" on the bench. We are not told that anyone rebuked him. To the contrary, many barristers, who when pleading cases also wear wigs and gowns, were glad to follow his example.

It is still summer there. But the news tells how the British women, having learned how to lessen the discomfort of heat by wearing modern clothing, short and more or less diaphanous, shocked the King at a recent society function, so that he showed his displeasure, with the result that the ladies' dresses are longer and, of course, warmer. One cannot picture gay old Edward VII or any of his predecessors in the Guelph line, manifesting such a puritanic complex.

Only prudish are sorry that the women have acquired so much common sense as to dispense with most of the hot weather impedimenta their grandmothers carried around. They have shown the way to the men, who have had a hard fight to get rid of coats in hot weather, at least indoors. Only in the past decade has it been possible to get this much comfort in restaurants, and there are still many timid souls who cannot make up their minds to shed their coats in public, though the temperature may be dangerously high.

Which brings us to the last word—our suffering policemen, who must keep buttoned up though they are ready to faint, and though their efficiency cannot fail to be reduced by the unnecessary torture. Custom is more powerful than law, and red tape is stronger even than custom. The bandits go about in the coolest undress. Why not adopt a really comfortable police uniform, coatless but neat, for our hot summers?

A SIGNIFICANT VISIT.

One of Mr. Coolidge's recent visitors at White Pine Camp was Harvey S. Firestone Jr., son of the Akron rubber king. He arrived to give the President a favorable report on rubber production possibilities in the Philippines. It was a significant visit. It shows what the President is thinking about in connection with the islands in which we supposedly possess only a fatherly and unselfish interest. It links up with the mission of the President's personal representative, Col. Carmi Thompson, who is now in the islands "investigating conditions," but who very soon after his arrival let it be known that it was rubber which interested him.

Woe to the Philippines' desire for independence if Mr. Firestone, Col. Thompson, Mr. Hoover and others decide that the Philippines are an ideal place for rubber production, and that in the islands we may offer battle to the British rubber monopoly! Rubber will rout the fair promise of the Jones bill, it will make even deadlier than they are now the words of President Wilson in 1920: "It is now our liberty and our duty to keep our promise to the people of those islands, by granting them the independence which they so honorably covet."

"Our priceless principles," said President McKinley, "undergo no change under a tropical sun." That was before we had established ourselves as the dictator and commercial exploiter of the Caribbean, and our priceless principles of liberty and self-government for ourselves and others were superseded by other more practical considerations. If anyone thinks we will turn loose a potentially great rubber plantation, promises or no promises, he has read recent American colonial history to no purpose. Neither has he gauged aright the philosophy of the last two Republican administrations. That philosophy is primarily concerned with our material advancement.

"The primary is over," said Mayor Miller on the morning after. In the language of the astute Mr. Feltlebaum, "Iss dees a fact?"

SUZANNE.

They say Suzanne Lenglen, lured by the golden promises of an American sports promoter, is to become a professional; that she is to desert the amateur ranks and become a paid athlete, like Jack Dempsey or Babe Ruth. What we think about such a desertion we refuse to say until Suzanne actually serves the first ball in her first professional match. The world's first woman tennis player has a way of changing her mind.

In the meantime, however, we should like to whisper to Suzanne that it is not true that American streets are paved with gold, and that nuggets of brilliant yellow hang from American trees. It is possible, even in America, that such a tour as she contemplates will be a financial flop. Inasmuch as the only motive that could induce Suzanne to take this important step is money, she had better make sure that money is forthcoming.

It has been officially decided that the Lake Denmark explosion was an act of God, who is not a member of the Cabinet.

MR. MELLON'S PRIVATE VACATION.

Secretary Mellon is irritated. European dispatches suggest that he resents the invasion of his personal and private rights, during his Continental vacation trip, by news-seeking correspondents.

It is interesting that Mr. Mellon, after years in the limelight of public life, should even entertain the idea that his comings and goings or doings are his own personal affair.

By the standards long since adopted in America he lost all the privileges of privacy when he became an outstanding figure in national and international finance.

Does Mr. Mellon forget that he is a billionaire monopolist, a servant of the public in a position of great trust, and a man who has forced himself unpleasantly on Great Britain as a financial mentor and critic, and a man who literally juggles with billions as he talks?

It is small chance such a man has to escape from persistent and incessant publicity. If he fled into the heart of the Gobi Desert in China to enjoy a quiet vacation, he would find himself surrounded by a battery of moving picture men, and the ubiquitous reporters would establish an hourly airplane service to the nearest telegraph line.

Kings have been known to travel incognito. Englishmen of a certain social cult do not ask impertinent questions. In America the life blood of the nation is inquisitiveness, and the veriest stranger is asked: How old are you? Are you married? How much money do you make?

No! Andrew J. Mellon, Secretary of the U. S. Treasury and an American, cannot pull off a quiet, personal, vacation anywhere. Certainly not in Europe. He might have a conference with somebody.

Senator Williams may not know whether he is wet or dry, but no confusion on the subject exists in the mind of Mrs. Burger.

A MAIN STREET WAR.

In that homeric struggle between Nameoki and Granite City over the St. Louis Coke and Iron Co's plant, everybody has something to say except the plant. Helen's beauty which burned the topless towers of Ilium had nothing on the economic lure which urges these two Illinois towns to battle over which shall include the plant in its corporate limits. The plant now lies between the two towns and has no desire for citizenship in either, with the outlay to a town treasury that that implies.

But this indifference to their charms does not cool the ardor of either Nameoki or Granite City. In calling a special annexation election for Sept. 3, Nameoki has the edge. At that election, the two districts surrounding the plant will be asked to vote it into Nameoki. Most of the plant employees live outside the township and cannot vote in the election. Therefore, the chief obstacle to Nameoki's ambition is Granite City's counter ambition. Granite City is now holding indignation meetings to see what can be done about it.

The plant is powerful financially. It is said to be worth $13,000,000. But this is of no avail against the relentless operation of Main street government. Its only hope is that the clash between Granite City and Nameoki will result in the matter being left in statu quo. The corporation has our sympathy.

have found the answer. The only thing on Chicago's West Side is the Cub's park. What feeling does a ball park arouse in the Captain's breast? Disgust, dreams unrealized, people in St. Louis know that. As a result, Capt. Stocker is a pessimist; he hates love's young dream; no one will spon in his parks. Give them exercise, cries the Spartan pessimist. But what have we on Chicago's South Side? The lake—Lake Michigan; galleons upon galleons of water, all in its proper place. Mr. Johnson contemplates all this, and his soul expands. He waxes poetic; he throws open the gates of the park, if it has gates; he pulls up the "Keep off the Grass" signs. Hurrah for water—in lakes!

Arthur, Who Told You Our Junior Senator
Is Wet?

A wet Republican and a wet Democrat are nominated in Missouri, despite efforts of the Antislavery League and Women's Christian Temperance Union.

In New York, Senator Wadsworth, described by his opponents as a wet and by his supporters as a man of common sense, will be nominated for Senator, and, according to those that understand New York politics, he will be re-elected.

Generally speaking, elections from now on will drift more and more into wet or dry contests. That is the real issue.—Bris-bane's Column, "Today."

WOMAN IN BUSINESS.

MRS. ANNE W. ARMSTRONG in Magazine.

I HAVE rarely heard any business woman as blunt as a woman executive who remarked that she had no time to to employees' grievances and had a subordinate to hear all the "nonsense."
I was especially distressed in this because, so it happened, I had been mental in securing her job for her recommended her to her present under the impression that she would more humanity into a group of where the handling of workers had along the old bullying, but no longer cavalier lines. What she did was to fall into the worst defects she her new environment. . . . A high personal business executive, who garded as the foremost man in his country, said of his secretary, a some young woman, "I've had more rate secretaries in the matter of hand, but upon my word, I wish I pay Miss W. ten thousand a year worth it. It's the atmosphere she around her. I don't hesitate to say increases my output."

But so few women seem to see the woman in them, above and beyond that business needs. . . . It is reasonable to hold that neither large nor the business world itself will greatly by our entrance into it.
women, no longer content solely with studies, shall offer, at whatever own contribution—all we have through our special inheritance ence—until we seek to supplement than duplicate the parts in men play?

"ex-convicts and gunmen" and Eller sent a score or more of names to the committee by messenger late in the day. The names the committee that he had a "wonderful organization, the best in Chicago," in his ward, and that it was due to this that he was able to poll an "almost unanimous vote" for his ticket.

ment declaring that $150,000 had been spent legitimately in the primary in behalf of a single can-

State. Recalling that he had expended $125,000, Moore said, "no sort of pressure was used to secure one dollar and not one cent was used to corrupt voters, or for any illegitimate purpose."

While questioning the right of the committee to inquire into that subject, Safford stated that his salary was $6,000 a year.

Tells of Gunmen at Polls.
Charges that County Judge Edward J. Larecki and Election Commissioners Carnegie appointed "convicts and gunmen" as election judges and clerks in his ward were made to the committee by Eller, who is identified with the Crowe-Barrett Republican organization of Cook County.

Reed asked for a list of the "convicts and gunmen," and Eller sent a score or more of names to the committee by messenger late in the day. Eller told the committee that he had a "reputable organization, the best in Chicago," in his ward, and that it was due to this that he was able to poll an "almost unanimous vote" for his ticket.

Recalling that he had expended $253,000, Moore said, "no part of pressure was used to secure one dollar and not one cent was used to corrupt voters, or for any illegitimate purpose."

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

WOMAN IN BUSINESS.

MRS. ANNE W. ARMSTRONG in Harper's Magazine.

I HAVE rarely heard any business man blurt as a woman executive who recognized that she had no time to lose to employees' grievances and had deigned a subordinate to hear all the "sob story" I was especially distressed in this instance because, so it happened, I had been instrumental in securing her job for her. I recommended her to her present "boss" under the impression that she would be more humanly to a group of factors where the handling of workers had been along the old bullying, but no longer so successful line. What she did was promptly to fall into the worst defects she found in her new environment. . . . A highly technical business executive, who is regarded as the foremost man in his line in this country, said of his secretary, a woman, "I've had more secretaries in the matter of business than I can count on my fingers. I wish I could pay Miss W. ten thousand a year! She's worth it. It's the atmosphere she creates around her. I don't hesitate to say she increases my output."

But so few women seem to see that the woman in them, above everything else, that business needs. . . . It is too reasonable to hold that neither society nor the business world itself will progressively by our entrance into it, until women, no longer content solely as under studies, shall offer, at whatever hazard, their own contribution—all we have gotten through our special inheritance and experience—until we seek to supplement, rather than duplicate the parts in business men play?

HONESTY IN BUSINESS.

From the Washington Post.

THERE will be general approval of the decision of the Federal Trade Commission to make public the names of the furniture manufacturers who have subscribed to the rules agreed upon by trade and promulgated by the commission. These rules are in the interest of honest dealing and are designed for the purpose of protecting the buyer, whether for retail use, against the practice of some manufacturers who resorted to trickery to secure customers. It has often been discovered that an attractive piece of household furniture, bought as mahogany, proved upon examination to be birch or some other cheaper wood stained to represent the product of Santo Domingo or Africa. No doubt of trade has been so greatly exploited by unscrupulous manufacturers as that of household furniture, and as every family must have furniture the fraudulent laborer making has affected more people perhaps than have suffered loss from the purchase of any other class of merchandise.

496,000 ALIENS COME TO U. S. IN A YEAR

Increase of 42,000 Over Previous Fiscal Period—Deportations Totaled 10,904.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The alien population of the country was increased by the entry of 496,000 immigrants in the fiscal year ending June 30, the Immigration Bureau reports, but 20,550 others who sought admission were debarred for various reasons. The total admissions compared with 455,435 for the previous year and 879,302 for the year ended June 30, 1924.

During June 42,319 aliens were admitted, comprising 24,780 immigrants and 18,251 non-immigrants, while the exodus of aliens during the month totaled 25,660.

Deportations during June reached a high water mark, 1924 undesirable aliens being sent out of the country, while deportations for the year totaled 10,904.

The State Department announces the system of examining immigrants aboard has been extended to Sweden, effective Sept. 1. This will exhaust funds available at present for this purpose.

Facilities already provided for such work will take care of 77 per cent of the immigrants.

JUDGMENT FOR MRS. R. L. DULA CUT TO $10,000

New York Judge Rules
$100,000 Verdict Against Mother-in-Law for Alienation Excessive.

ORDER TO SET IT ASIDE ALTERNATIVE

Court Holds Estranged Wife
Already Has Received Substantial Sum in Addition to Alimony.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The verdict of $100,000 awarded by a jury last spring to Mrs. Elsie Hinman Dula against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine Dula, whom she charged with having alienated the affections of her husband, Robert L. Dula, has been reduced by Supreme Court Justice Crane to $10,000. The reduction was on a motion by Outerbridge Horsey, attorney for the elder woman, to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial.

Justice Crane yesterday held the verdict was in excess of any damages suffered by young Mrs. Dula. Robert L. Dula and his wife were married in 1919 and after a trip to Europe separated. A suit for separation with permanent alimony was won by the wife. She then brought suit against Robert B. Dula and his wife, her husband's parents, for $250,000 for alleged alienation of the affections.

Robert B. Dula, formerly a vice president of the American Tobacco Co. and later an export operator in real estate, died before the trial came to trial. It was continued as to his widow.

Intoxication Charges Made.
The trial, which gave Mrs. Elsie Hinman Dula a verdict of $100,000, lasted more than a week and was marked by charges of intoxication by both husband and wife against each other.

Justice Crane, in his opinion yesterday, said in part:
"If the plaintiff was not entitled to a verdict it was because of the weakness of her case and not because of any strength in the defense. The summation of plaintiff's counsel was in part inflammatory and caused the cautionary remarks with which the charge to the jury opens."

Has Substantial Alimony.
"The verdict is excessive. It exceeds any damage which the plaintiff sustained. She married a man without any earning capacity, whose property, such as it was, came to him by gift from his parents. She has secured a substantial sum as the result of the sale of the grounds and house at Buck-sho and a substantial annual support by way of alimony."
"The verdict will be set aside as excessive, unless the plaintiff consents that it be reduced to the sum of $10,000, in which event the motion to set it aside and for a new trial will be denied."

Although one of the wealthiest men in the Senate, a multimillionaire, he says he is not entering the theatrical field from altruistic motives, but as a business proposition. He pointed out that since 1903 Cheyenne has not had a large theater. He contends Cheyenne is a desirable stop for troupes on the way to the Pacific Coast.

WILLIAM H. (COIN) HARVEY VERY ILL AT ROGERS, ARK. Blood Poisoning Attacks Writer Who Helped Nominates Bryan in 1896.

ROGERS, Ark., Aug. 6.—William H. (Coin) Harvey, 74 years old, nationally known writer and author of "Coin's Financial School," which figured extensively in the late William J. Bryan's free silver campaign of 1896, is critically ill at his home in Monte Ne, a summer resort near here, from blood poisoning in one foot. His recovery is regarded as doubtful.

Writings of Harvey, an exponent of bimetalism, figured prominently in the nomination of the Great Commoner for the presidency in 1896.

Of recent years Harvey has been devoting himself to the erection at Monte Ne of a pyramid in which he hoped to preserve for future civilizations a record of the achievements marking civilization up to the present century. About $10,000 was spent in preparing the foundation for the huge stone structure which is to be 130 feet tall.

For the past 50 years Harvey has made a study of former civilizations and their downfalls. From these studies he concluded that this civilization will vanish as those before it, and he has been working for the preservation of the achievements of the present civilization, in order that it will be available to future civilizations.

Harvey hoped to complete the pyramid late in 1926 or early in 1927.

NEWTON SEES GREAT FUTURE FOR PANAMA

St. Louis Congressman Tells of Development and Shipping in Canal Zone.

Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of the Tenth District, with his family, will arrive in St. Louis in a few days, having returned from a Caribbean cruise, in which he visited Panama, Hayti and Costa Rica. He is to retire from Congress at the end of his term next March. Henry F. Niedringhaus, a Republican nominee to succeed him, Newton is to be associated in the practice of law with Marion C. Early, M. B. Wood and Ivon Lodge.

In Washington yesterday, Representative Newton told of the great development he had found in the Canal Zone. The docks which have been constructed on the Pacific side of the canal, he said, are now receiving many ships, which stop there to divide their cargoes between the northern and southern Pacific coasts, and the American west coast of South America. He believes this transfer business will develop to a point which will make Panama one of the world's greatest distributing points in the world.

In Hayti, he saw great improvement over conditions as he viewed them on a former visit. At that time, six years ago, 2000 United States Marines were on the island to maintain peace, while today 800 Marines are able to handle the situation. The Marines have broken up banditry and made life and property secure, he said. The people now are better dressed and look better fed than on his previous visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton and their son John were guests of United States Minister Roy Davis, a Missourian, in Costa Rica. Fishing and hunting were among their diversions, and the Newtons say they caught some big fish which they would hesitate to exhibit to President Coolidge, lest he should be disappointed with his occasional catches of Adirondack pike.

By the Associated Press.
MONTE VISTA, Colo., Aug. 6.—Colorado is backing Vice President Charles G. Dawes against President Coolidge as a trout fisherman. He was so informed by the committee of welcome yesterday when he came here to attend the Ski-Hi stampee and grinned his reply that he'd "do his best for the State."

How he found the fishing around the Wagonwheel Gap ranch of Col. A. E. Humphreys, Denver oil magnate, where he is a guest, Dawes replied "it couldn't be better."

The Vice President was given an ovation as he was escorted to the private box reserved for his party and showed great interest in the roping, riding and bulldogging events. He plans to leave Wagonwheel Gap next Thursday for his return to the East, stopping at Denver.

SCRATCH ON NOSE CAUSES DEATH FROM BLOOD POISONING

Miss Diana Barkley of Alton Fell Against Wire Netting When Trying to Catch Chicken.

Blood poisoning, caused by the scratch of a piece of chicken wire netting on the tip of her nose 10 days ago caused the death Wednesday of Miss Diana Barkley, 23 years old, at Alton, Ill.

Miss Barkley was trying to catch a chicken when she tripped and fell against the wire netting inclosing the chicken yard, slightly scratching the tip of her nose. Little attention was given the scratch at the time, it appeared so trivial, but a few days later infection set in and extended upward into the nostrils. Several physicians joined in an effort to save Miss Barkley's life, but the infection could not be checked.

Funeral services were held today from the Raskin funeral home, Delmar Heights, Alton, to Oakwood Cemetery.

HOME LOAN CREDITORS GET 21 PER CENT OF THEIR CLAIMS

A receiver's report on the Home Loan and Investment Trust was approved today by Circuit Judge Falkenhainer, ordering payment, on a basis of 21 per cent, of the $24,548 claims against the concern, which was taken over by the State Finance Department in May, 1923, when Deputy Commissioner French was appointed receiver.

The 230 creditors are chiefly persons who had invested in the building and loan trust. Only 17 claims were disallowed. Arthur Freund, attorney for the trustee, said eventual payment in full was assured by a surety bond which the receiver took out to protect against depreciation of assets.

INSURANCE FIRMS NOT TO INCREASE GUARANTEE BONDS

Alternate Proposal of State to Impound Premiums Also Denied by Supreme Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 6.—A motion in State Supreme Court by the State Insurance Department seeking to compel about 150 stock fire insurance companies in Missouri to impound premiums or post a $10,000,000 surety bond to guarantee refunds of excess insurance premiums pending final determination of Missouri rate litigation in the United States Supreme Court, was overruled today by the State Supreme Court in banc.

The motion was filed following the Missouri Supreme Court's decision last May sustaining an order issued by the Insurance Department in October 1922, reducing the rates on first lightning, hail and windstorm insurance 10 per cent. The companies appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

The full rates have been collected by the companies since the court fight over the reduction order began. The department estimates the companies have collected $8,000,000 in excess of the rates ordered. The amount is increasing at the rate of $2,000,000 a year.

When the case was in Cole County Circuit Court, the companies obtained an injunction against enforcement of the reduction order, the companies posted surety bonds totaling about $2,000,000 to guarantee refunds if the rate order should be upheld, but no additional bonds were posted when the case reached the State Supreme Court.

Gamble for the benefit of Mrs. Charles P. Miller, 19 South Boyle avenue, wife of his adopted son, at whose home he lived.

He left $1 each to two sons, William and George Miller of Philadelphia, and also $1 to his adopted son. The sum of $500 was bequeathed to Mrs. Lena Newman of Philadelphia, a friend.

KANSAS CITY SUITS BLOCKED Court Rejects Salary Claims of Ousted Employees.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 6.—Back salary claims of about 500 former civil service employees of Kansas City, aggregating nearly $3,000,000, which threatened to deplete the city treasury, were disallowed today by the Supreme Court in banc. The court ruled that the employees, who were discharged for political reasons, were not entitled to reinstatement or back salary from the time of discharge. These claims have been accumulating for some time at the rate of $200 a day and approximately $200 a month.

The Supreme Court made permanent a writ of prohibition restraining Circuit Judge Coon of Kansas City from hearing one of the suits. Judge Robert F. Walker, who wrote the opinion, held that "it is a general rule" except where otherwise provided by a state or charter, that a municipal employee, hired or appointed for no particular period of time, is generally discharged at any time with or without cause by the municipality through its proper officers." Judges Otto Alward and Graves concurred. Judges White, Ragland and Blair dissented.

LOST MARK HOPKINS WILL REPORTED FOUND

Instrument to Be Made Basis for Legal Contest Over $300,-
000,000 Fortune.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The Examiner says that the purported "lost will" of the late Mark Hopkins, multimillionaire railroad builder and California pioneer, was brought to this city Wednesday night, and today will become the foundation of a legal attack upon the Hopkins fortune, now estimated as in excess of $300,000,000.

Allegedly the will was found recently in a deserted house near Hillsborough, N. C. It is to be filed for probate in Superior Court here by P. B. McCandless, a San Jose lathing contractor. McCandless claims to be the grandson of Martin Hopkins, mentioned in the alleged document as one of Mark's brothers.

Hopkins died Oct. 23, 1878. No will was found and his estate, then appraised at about $20,000,000, was distributed among various relatives. The new contestants for a share of the fortune claim that on Dec. 25, 1874, Hopkins wrote a will in San Francisco and mailed it to North Carolina to a Mrs. Moore, said to have been a former sweetheart. Because she was not named as one of the beneficiaries, Mrs. Moore was said to have never revealed the will, and its existence was not disclosed until found in her former home by her grandson, David S. Moore. The document was literally written on a single piece of paper.

Doubt as to the authenticity of the will already has been expressed. Boutwell Dunlap, an authority on California history, said that Hopkins was bookkeeper for the "Big Four" and was a well-educated man. Also, Dunlap said, the Hopkins family of which Mark was a member, has one of the best known and best established genealogies of all New England families. The family is descended from Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower.

INSULL LEASES A THEATER FOR HIS WIFE TO PLAY IN

She Has Organized Repertoire Company in Chicago to Open Season Oct. 1.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Samuel Insull, the former Gladys Wallis of the stage, will have a theatrical company of her own and her own theater in which "to present the best American and foreign plays." This she will be enabled to do through the organization of the Repertoire Theater Co., which holds a lease for six years on the Studer Theater here and will take possession about Oct. 1.

Confirmation of recent reports that Mrs. Insull had acquired control of the Studer theater came from her husband, who is head of the Chicago Civic Opera Co., as well as of many public utilities.

"My purpose in arranging for this enterprise," said Insull, "is to enable Mrs. Insull to participate in the production of plays in which she will, from time to time, appear. It has long been her ambition to give Chicago a permanent dramatic organization that would enlist attention on its merits."

Mrs. Insull a year ago returned to the theater for charity in a revival of "The School for Scandal."

OHIO RACE TRACK CLOSES WHEN COURT BARS BETTING

Injunction Stops Thirtiedown Meeting and Will Be Used Against Other Courses.

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 6.—Horse racing in Ohio apparently is doomed unless tracks are willing to operate without betting.

The Thirtiedown track near here, the first to take action, canceled today's program and may close that running meeting, scheduled to run until Aug. 14, as a result of a temporary injunction granted by Attorney-General C. C. Crabbe yesterday by Supreme Court Justice C. T. Marshall, at Columbus, O.

Crabbe declared that the injunction, which prohibits betting, would be used as a basis for action against all tracks where the pari-mutuel or certificate form of betting is permitted. Action is pending against the Coney Island Jockey Club at Cincinnati.

The management of the North Randall track, where the grand circuit harness horse races are held, is the only one to signify its intention to operate without betting.

Y. M. C. A. CONGRESS TO GIVE 600 YOUTHS NEW VIEWPOINTS

Meetings at Helsingfors, Sweden, Bring Representatives of Many Nations Together.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News, (Copyright, 1926).
HELSINGFORS, Aug. 6.—Although the social investigation of the Y. M. C. A. Congress here will do nothing new in the way of a new world philosophy, 600 youths brought here will unquestionably benefit by contact with the youth of other nations.

The theory that all Germans drink beer, and that an Englishman takes 20 minutes to see a joke, and others, are getting knocked in the head.

The Hungarian Huck Finn has found the American Tom Sawyer, and both are sitting outside the Finnish Normal School, where the congress is meeting, carving their initials on walking sticks. All the kids in Helsingfors are sporting wicked-looking Finnish knives and the piles of wood shavings are the most inspiring sight of the congress.

A Springfield (Mass.) youth worked his way here on a cattle boat from Montreal. Another tow-head worked his way over by peeling potatoes on a passenger ship. Another worked his way on a Swedish freighter.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 6.—
Full authority to administer State insurance law in respect to suing and denying licenses to insurance brokers rests with the Superintendent of Insurance,
Missouri Supreme Court, en banc held today.

The Court made the ruling in case brought by Frank L. Mackey of St. Louis against Ben C. Hyde, State Superintendent of Insurance.
Mackey filed mandamus proceed-insurance superintendent to issue him an insurance broker's license, claiming he had complied with the law.

maintained, however, that Mackey failed to comply with the application requirements in that he refused to answer questions as to whether the insurance business was to be his principal business, and much time he intended to devote to it and what were his qualifications as an insurance broker.

issue Mackey a writ of mandamus,

intendent has full authority in such matters.

BOSS ESSEN'S MAN
FOR COUNTY COURT
BEATEN 164 VOTES

W. J. Preiss Loses to Albert
Wehmeyer, It Is Disclosed
by Delayed Primary Returns.

Fred Essen, Republican boss of St. Louis County, has suffered a new setback. It is shown by completion of the unofficial returns for the Republican nomination for Presiding Judge of the County Court, or administrative body, in last Tuesday's primary.

The count stands 4450 for Albert Wehmeyer of Baden, against 4256 for William J. Preiss, now an Associate Judge of the court and the Essen candidate to preside there. Wehmeyer gained seven votes when figures were obtained
today for the last missing precinct, University City No. 11, where precinct officials had failed to fill out blanks for the unofficial returns.
This is the largest precinct in the county and it was thought its vote might change the result as Preiss has a considerable following in that section.

Figures for other candidates for this nomination, without the vote from this one precinct included, were: George H. Bobring, also an Associate Judge, 3114; James M.
Jensen, 2055; Mrs. Amy L. Stillman, some of whose campaign signs bore the slogan, "Ladies
First," 1843.

Other Results.
"Uncle Jimmy" Gardner of Baden and George P. Rott of Kirkwood, a former County Judge, have won the Republican nominations for Associate Judge from the First and Second Districts, respectively, with the following votes:
Gardner, 4767; Kuhlman, 4210; Wiegman, 1243; Wuest, 992, in the First District, and Rott, 1722,
George W. Preiss, 1480; Bodine, 1259; Butler, 399; Schwenk, 300, in the Second District.

For the Republican nomination for Circuit Clerk, Oscar H. Jacobs-meyer of Clayton appears to have an unbeatable lead over Henry C.
Kirchner, the incumbent, with 8759 votes to 8133. There is no change from the results for county offices indicated by earlier reports, on both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

Vote on Constable.
Constable George Roth of Central Township, a Republican, won renomination by a large margin.
The vote was: Roth, 3267; Frank 2651; Oldenworth, 1536; Grupp, 1139. The missing precinct is in this township.

Constable Roth has taken exception to the statement in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch that he was a machine politician, objecting to the inference that he was linked with Fred Essen, boss of the county. He was opposed by the Essen element in this and the 1924 campaigns, having been elected the first time on his record as a Deputy Sheriff.
Complete unofficial returns for other contested Republican races for Constable are: Bonhomme Township, Louis Hollman, incumbent, 1314; Frank Weiss, 1304, St.
Ferdinand Township, John E.
Flood, incumbent, 1452; Rudolph J.
Schorr, 1216; Charles J. Watson, 78,
Meramec Township, Charlie J. St.
Onge, 393; John W. Walter, incumbent, 129; Louis F. Dussard, 43.

DENVER COURT APPROVES

STOKES WILL SETTLEMENT

Securities Value: at $1,500,000 to be Held in Trust by Widow Until Children Become of Age.

By the Associated Press.
DENVER, Colo., Aug. 6.—The last chapter in the contest over the will of the late W. E. D. Stokes of New York was written here when County Judge Luxford signed the agreement reached between Stokes' widow, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes of Denver and W. E. D. Stokes Jr., his son and beneficiary under the will.

The agreement provides that 12,000 shares in the Kessio Corporation, valued at approximately $1,500,000, be held in trust by Mrs.
Stokes as guardian for her two children, James, 11 years old, and Helen Muriel, 10, until they become of age.

An additional stipulation providing for the payment of $175,000 in attorney's fees to Samuel W. Untermeyer was not signed by Judge Luxford. This will not be done until it has the approval of Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver's juvenile court, Judge Luxford said.

With the Denver Judge's signature the agreement becomes effective. Surrogate James Foley having approved it in New York last week.

Mellillo's Sensational Second Base Play Has Been One of Features of Browns' at-Home Stand.

Pedling Stands Out.

In these lean days at Sportsman's Park when victories are scarce, the work of Mellillo has been one of the outstanding features. In the last three clashes, which have resulted in victories, Mellillo's fielding played no small part.

For instance, there was the final with the Senators. Mellillo saved that game when he made a sensational stop of Sam Rice's smash behind first base in the sixth inning.

Came the tilt in which Nevers subdued the Mackmen. Mellillo again starred. His feature play came in the eighth when he snared Bishop's bid for a safety, tagged Walberg on the line and then doubled the runner at first. The former Milwaukee star followed by another fine exhibition yesterday. All told he handled eight chances cleanly and several were of the sensational variety.

Falk Comes Through.

Another of the younger pitchers in the Browns' payroll came through. This time it was Chester Falk, the left-hander. Falk replaced Zachary in the third inning yesterday after the southpaw had shown nothing but a tendency to fire the ball in the general direction, but not over the plate.

Suzanne Turned Pro Last Spring Tilden Asserts

Champion Declares Pyle Showed Him Suzanne's Signed Contract Months Ago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 5.—"Big Bill" Tilden is sponsor of a statement that Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis ace, signed her present contract with C. C. Pyle last spring, and under strict interpretation of international tennis laws was ineligible to compete in recent tournaments on the Riviera and at Wimbledon.

"I saw the contract," said Tilden. "It was shown to me by Mr. Pyle, and I have reason to believe Suzanne's denials of its existence were made with a view of remaining a recognized amateur throughout the recent European tournaments."

Plans Comeback Campaign.

"All my attention will be devoted to the amateur game from now until the national championships are over," he said. "I will be on the courts every day from now until the Davis Cup challenge round and the national singles championships are played."

Asked as to his opinion of Pyle's proposed venture with the French woman star, he said he would have to have more complete information than the cables had thus far carried.

FANS FAVOR GEORGE BURNS FOR FIRST BASE ON ALL-STAR TEAM

CLEVELAND 'VET' PLAYING HIS 14TH SEASON

Gehrig Wins Place in Many Selections — Judge and Bottomley Are Far Behind.

A belated bid for fame is being made by the veteran George Burns, Cleveland first baseman, who is quietly passing his fourteenth summer in major league baseball by reaching out with his war club for Tris Speaker's two-base hit record.

Burns is being picked for the first-base position by a large number of contestants in the Post-Dispatch Babe Ruth All-American team contest and easily leads the field. Lou Gehrig, youthful Yankee first sacker, is his closest rival, with Jim Bottomley and Joe Judge a bad third and fourth.

Not a Sure Shot.

The popular Indian is 33 years old and, as baseball goes, a fairly "old man." His bid for the two-bagger record is bringing him into prominence and his ease and grace of style, in batting and fielding, have won him a large following. This is not to say that he is a sure pick for Ruth's team. Quite the contrary. Almost every position on the squad is an "open" proposition, more than ever before.

The object of the contest is to select a team of ten players—two pitchers and eight men in the other positions—with a view to having it coincide with Ruth's team, which will be announced shortly after the close of the contest on Aug. 31. Ruth will be assisted in his work by the opinions of sport authorities in major league cities. His team has come to be recognized as the authoritative one of its kind.

Each reader who enters the contest should append to the selection an explanation of 200 words, no more, telling why the selection was made. In case two or more contestants hit exactly on Ruth's selection, the winner will be decided on the merits of his accompanying essay. Read the tabulated rules carefully before jumping into the job of selecting a team.

Thevenow for Shortstop.

Walker Beasley, 4411 Kossuth avenue, chooses the following players:

Hellman, Tigers, right field, Cockrane, Athletics, catcher, Uhl, Indians, pitcher, Wells, Tigers, pitcher.

Contestants are reminded that publication of a selection is no comment on its merits, but is merely intended for whatever interest it may contain for followers of the contest and fans generally. And again, to prospective contestants—read the rules carefully. They are very simple and must be observed.

Rules Governing Babe Ruth All-America Team Contest

Any reader who mails to the Post-Dispatch card with 25¢ and AUG. 31 a team of 10 players (except Ruth himself) in the National and American Leagues for the season of 1926, with a letter of not more than 200 words, explaining the selection of the team, is eligible to compete.

The reader whose team—two pitchers and eight men in the other positions—is the same or nearly the same as the team of the same 10 players as Ruth, but must assign them to the same 10 positions on the team.

Players may be placed in positions other than their regular positions provided they have played in those places in at least one regular league game in 1926.

Players must be selected on the basis of their playing in 1926, NOT on records made in previous seasons.

In case no team is exactly the same as that selected by Babe Ruth, the one nearest will be named on the basis of his accompanying explanation.

Violation of any rule set forth here will render selections unavailable.

There will be suitable trophies to be awarded later. The winner, runner-up, and third best selection and letter.

In addition, Babe Ruth himself offers an autographed bat to the winner of the first prize. The bat will also be inscribed with the winner's name.

HORNSBY'S ANSWERS

One out, runner on first base. Batter hits a line drive which strikes umpire, who is officiating behind the pitcher instead of back of the plate. Pitcher recovers the ball and throws batter out at first. Embury says he is entitled to get to first, but my contention is that he is out. Who is right?—WILL THOMAS.

The umpire is right. The batter is entitled to first.

(1) Three on base. Pitcher balks. Do all runners move up? (2) Runners on first and third, pitcher balks. Does the runner on third score? (3) Runner on third, pitcher balks. Does he score? (4) Can the batter be sent to first on any of these plays? (5) No one on base. Batter is in position, pitcher steps into box and starts to pitch but does not. Does the batter go to first?—R. D. S.

(1) Yes. One base apiece.

(2) Yes.

(3) Yes.

(4) No. Batter never gets his base on a balk.

(5) No, but he should be cautioned by the umpire for delaying the game.

Astoria Assassin Is Through With Light Heavies for Good, Says Fairplay.

By Fairplay. (Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—It looks as if Paul Berlenbach has forsaken the light heavyweight ranks for good. He has practically decided to go back on his word to take on Mike McTigue in two weeks.

No doubt Paul remembers the hard time he had making the weight for his championship fight with Jack Delaney, and will fight as a heavyweight hereafter.

There is some talk of matching the Astoria assassin with Harry Wills. Those who have the best interests of the game at heart would not like to see that. They figure Paul is too slow and too easy to hit to be put in with a big fellow like Wills. All this talk about Wills being a back number and an old-timer is the bunk. The negro is in prime condition and has lost little if any of his ability. Wills is working long and earnestly for his long-hoped-for match with Jack Dempsey, and is ready to put up the best fight of his long career.

Putting Paul in with a man at least 35 pounds heavier and his superior in height, reach and strength would be foolhardy. It speaks well for Paul's willingness to meet any and all comers, but asking him to fight Harry Wills is asking too much of the former light heavyweight champion.

Wills no doubt would take the match. The entire winter and summer have gone without any money coming in. Whether or not the match would take place in New York depends on the action of the boxing commission. The chances are they would turn thumbs down and tell Paul to look for other opponents.

RAILROAD STOCKS PROBABLY ON CHANGE

Some New Highs Recorded—Earnings of Carriers Over Six Months of Year a Factor in Market—Franc Above 3 Cents.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

Speculation for the advance was resumed with vigor on the stock exchange today and the buying movement broadened and perceptibly embracing a wide variety of issues. Railroad shares, which up to this time had little part in the spectacular movements of the week, were drawn to the front as the full significance of the remarkable earnings of the carriers over the first six months of the year became generally realized. The movement in the industrial lost little of its vigor, however, though the recent leaders were quiet by comparison with their activity earlier in the week. Specialties in which pools are working and stocks that are regarded as likely to benefit handsomely in the course of merger negotiations and extra dividend distributions were the strongest features. The farm implement issues, equipments, coppers, some of the oils and the motors were all well bought and trading ran well in excess of the turnover of yesterday. Mail order issues and other stocks that were in the retail trade were prominent.

Money Stiffens Again. "That the heavy business of the country is making for a slightly firmer tone in money was again apparent during the day when in the afternoon, when for a moment money was advanced to 4 1/2 percent from the renewal figure of 4 1/4 percent. Changes in the bank statement showing an increase over $13,000,000 in bill and security holdings and a loss of close to $2,000,000 in cash reserves testified to that condition. But bankers are satisfied that no serious tightening is imminent. Traders were heedless of the slight upturn in the rate and late dealing in stocks brought an increased demand, particularly for General Motors and Steel, which were generally advanced over the best of the day.

Favorable Earnings Help Bulls. "Plenty of news readily susceptible to bullish interpretation came to hand overnight and in the course of the day. Most gratifying was the splendid showing of the country's railroads in the first six months of the year. Net earnings for that period reached a record figure never before approached. This naturally turned attention to the transportation issues, and as a group the rails were rapidly advanced from the front of the market. Atchison and New York Central, both at new high record prices, were in the leadership with sharp gains. Merchandising shares, stimulated by the appearance of the earnings statements of a number of the chain store and department store companies. Further testimony on the prosperity of the oil industry, as presented in the action of the Standard of New York directors in increasing the dividend on that stock helped the petroleum shares on the big board and the coppers extended their recent gains materially. Specialties, of course, provided the most spectacular movements with the Case Threshing, New York Cannery, Brake Shoe, Close-Wire, Riscuit and Cast Iron Pipe the features.

Franc Crosses 30 Mark. "Resumption of the market recovery in French francs which was temporarily interrupted by realizing yesterday was the feature of the day in the foreign exchange market. The franc, stimulated by widespread talk of the prospect of an early establishment of new French currency and ratification of the debt settlement, rates on Paris pushed forward spectacularly in early dealings. The sharp overnight gain, however, which carried the currency to the 3.10 cent level, the highest in several months, brought some selling and a moderate recession resulted. Belgian francs, and Italian lire were strong in sympathy, but further weakness in far Eastern exchanges reflected the fresh drop in silver at London.

Cotton a Framer. "Grains were feverish throughout the day and the closing was easier. Cotton, on the other hand, developed a firmer tone than at any time previously this week, as speculators covered in advance of the government report due Monday.

CHAPTER 22.

ALAN bowed stiffly and made his way into the street. He had not told Beverly that he was coming to North tonight; he had thought to save her the strain of waiting. He had merely told her that he was busy and would not be home until very late and now he struck off in the direction of the Forest Grove development.

Forest Grove! It was more to him than a mere beautiful subdivision—it had served to enlighten him as to his own capabilities, caused him to revive faith in himself. And he had dreamed his dreams—only North had been different. There was a particular lot which Alan loved; he had dreamed of a little bungalow for himself and Beverly—a cozy little place set well back on the lawn and with two big trees in front—a row of shrubbery and flowers banked against the veranda. He hadn't tried very hard to sell that lot; it had pleased him to mark it out for his own. Not a day passed that he didn't go there and envision the place as it would be when his home should be built.

And now—that dream was ended. The vision was shattered. Stark reality faced him. In two weeks—three at the utmost—he would be no more. Even in the face of certainty he could not quite believe that; he was too thoroughly alive, too keenly desirous of living, to believe that his life could be snapped off like a dead twig from a tree.

He reached the Grove and directed his steps quite unconsciously to a new bungalow on Mountain road. That bungalow, too, was part of him. It had been his idea in the first place; Better Homes Week—with this new bungalow furnished and decorated by the leading firms of the city. It was designed to show people of comfortable means the possibility of home building and furnishing on an ordinary Forest Grove lot—and into the interior decoration of this little home Alan had thrown himself with passionate ardor.

The Better Homes bungalow stood alone on a knoll. There were no homes on the adjoining lots; Mountain road had only recently been improved and put on the market. Alan let himself into the place with the key he carried. He switched on the electric light in the music room and settled in a big chair. He wanted to be alone, to think, to readjust himself.

Until tonight he had refused to lose faith. With a steadfastness not untiring with optimism he had banked upon his own achievement and the spark of humanness which he believed must be present in North's breast. That he had failed to judge North correctly meant the end. It was necessary for him to face the brief future—and to probe still further; of what it would mean to Beverly when he should be gone.

But he found it impossible to think connectedly. The furnishings of his own selection; the mulberry overdrapes on the windows, the arrangement of the furniture, the little personal touch here and there—just as he had planned for his dream home—his mind kept coming back to them, and to Beverly. Hope was gone—but desire had not.

Alan had come to the bungalow not entirely by chance. He wanted to be alone, to prepare himself for the meeting with Beverly when he should be forced to tell her that hope was gone, and this place offered the solitude and sanctuary which he craved.

It was, in a way, his own. A part of himself had gone into its designing, its furnishing, its decoration. It represented the crystallization of his most romantic dreams for the future—and now it seemed a link between those dreams and a merciless reality.

He had gone to Andrew North that night filled with greater hope than he confessed even to himself. No had ridden on the crest of a wave of elation; he had envisioned himself returning to Beverly with the news that they were to have their chance together; that North indeed had proved human, and now he must go to her and discuss the end—the end of everything; of himself, of their romance, of their pitiful mite of happiness.

He found it extraordinarily difficult to get a grip on himself. For the first time he experienced the pangs of despair. Never before had death seemed inevitable; his constant repetition of his belief in North's humanness had bred groundless hope. And now hope was shattered. His appeal had been reviewed by the highest court and that court had affirmed the death sentence. Nothing remained but to wait—and prepare.

Of material preparation there was little. His affairs were in order. But he must prepare for the two or three weeks of life which remained. He must adjust himself mentally tonight—here—so that he could face Beverly with a brave, smiling face, and convince her that he was reconciled and that they should be grateful for the happiness of the past—and look upon the misery of the future only as a fair price.

It was not easy—probably because the argument was fallacious. There was so magnificently much to live for; the room in which he sat seemed to be his own; the materialization of his dreams. Jealously he had guarded the secret from his fellow workers when they had marveled audibly at his indefatigable energy in furnishing this house.

They had not realized that a part of himself was going into it—that in every room he visualized Beverly, Beverly his wife. And perhaps they would not have understood.

It was with this picture of Beverly before him that he struggled to readjust himself, to soothe his jangling nerves for the inevitable interview with her. And at length he realized that his feelings were under control. Reluctantly he rose and donned his overcoat. Then he snapped on the light and looked the front door behind him. He did it slowly—making a ceremony of it. It was his farewell to his home that might have been.

The mid-September breeze sighed softly in the trees, whispering to him in a language which he could no longer understand. His feet had come solidly back to earth; head down, hands clasped behind his back—a characteristic gesture. His feet made a peculiarly loud noise on the new sidewalk.

An Old Score—and An Expert Shot. It was perhaps his preoccupation; certainly he sensed no one until the gun barrel was jammed into his left side with a force which caused him to wince from the sheer pain of it. As from a great distance the voice of Nick Webb came to him; harsh and cold.

Stands up! Slowly he elevated his hands. In the faint light of the half-moon he could see the evil face of the man whose wrist he had once broken with a poker. He knew then that the end had come, and his only feeling was one of surprise that North should have anticipated the year's end.

He was amazed at his own calmness. He said nothing; merely stood quietly and thought about irrelevant things like mulberry overdrapes and cozy little bungalows and Beverly—and wondering why North should be doing this now.

Webb spoke. Actually he whispered, but his voice beat loudly on Alan's eardrums. "I've got you where I want you. They'll never think it was me—out in this swell dump."

Surprise gripped Alan. "Who won't think it was you, Webb?" "Who the hell do you think I mean?"

"North?" "Yes, North." "Then, you're not doing this under orders?"

"Say—The face grimaced hideously. "You ain't trying to kid me, are you? No, I ain't acting under orders. I'm doing this on me own, see! I said I'd get you for what you done—and, by God! I've got you."

"I see. Your idea is that you can kill me and get away with it undiscovered, eh?" "I don't give three hoots in hell about the discovery party. Nobody never done to Nick Webb what you done—and lived very long. Well, you ain't going to, neither; understand?"

"I begin to get the idea. Queer, isn't it, Nick, that I'm not frightened?" "You better begin to get frightened pretty damn quick, because you got just about 30 seconds to do it in."

Alan's calm was superb. He was not conscious of any particular courage. He merely was indifferent. It was simply a final touch to the reality of a conviction which was, on the face of it, impossible.

"It seems to me you're taking an absurd chance, Webb. North has just informed me that I'll be dead in two weeks at the most."

"That he be dead in two minutes at the most. And it'll be Nick Webb who killed you; see?" "You insist on performing this rite yourself?"

"You're dog-gone tootin' that's what I'm doing. Nobody can do to Nick Webb."

"Yes, you said that before. I assure you, you're foolish. But, if nothing else will satisfy you—go to it!"

There was no slightest doubt in his mind that Webb was in earnest. His body did not stiffen, his eyes did not close. He looked straight at the broad-shouldered figure of his self-appointed executioner, a mocking light in his eyes. After all, if the end had to come, it were better this way; the shock would be greater for Beverly, of course; but she would be saved the horror of counting hours against the inevitable—the fortnight-long vigil, the eternal hope foredoomed to be blasted.

Webb's features worked spasmodically. It was obvious that the man was nervous himself to a murderous frenzy. Alan waited—the shot sounded abnormally loud in the vast stillness of Forest Grove. It came like the voice of a cannon—and Alan looked down upon the crumpled figure of Nick Webb. On Webb's face was a look of surprise. Nick's revolver lay at Upholstered chairs have not gone out of fashion but have been modified in shape, heavily or lightly upholstered according to the needs of the place that they adorn. Interior decorators insist on having things suitable as well as properly decorated for the places they are to occupy. Upholstery material was never as beautiful as it is today, variously priced so that it suits all purchasers. Sunfast materials are a real economy; light-weight tapestry, mercerized reps, and striped and figured broads are all serviceable and good for light upholstery use.

How Old Is a Chair?

CHAIRS, it is said, date back 6000 years; stools were in fashion earlier than that. Babylon was the seat of the first furniture industry and the output was copied by the Assyrians. The tables were of the cross-legged type, the stools were low and the seats were rush; couches were flat slabs with but little carving. A few couches had carved ends, and some stools had square wooden seats.

But it was chairs that were prized. They were first made with low backs, then gradually they grew higher and more decorative. Carved from beautiful natural woods, the chairs were decorated with bronze cast in attractive designs. The arms ended in elaborately carved heads of animals usually. The feet of the legs were fashioned into paws of the animals whose heads were used on the different woods became a food of the wealthy; later painted wood sometimes overlaid with gold.

Chairs kept right on taking unto themselves new shapes, until today we have an endless choice of varied woods and finishes.

The Lobster Without Claws

Getting knowledge is no task
To those who do not fear to ask.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy wasn't a bit bashful. That is, he isn't a bit bashful. Where he is not suspicious. He went out to find out about the lobster. Perhaps it is just what Barker the Seal was looking for.

"There's only one kind of lobster," Reddy said.

"There is only one kind around here," replied Barker. "but I am sure there is another kind of lobster that has no claws."

"You mean it hasn't any claws?" Reddy asked.

"No, it has all!" cried Reddy opening his eyes wide.

"What's the matter, I said claws," Barker somewhat sharply.

"A while ago you told me the claws are feet, so how can I know?"

"Well, I meant those big pinch-claws," exclaimed Barker.

"Lobster! I speak of is found down South in the warm waters. I am told he is also found on another shore called the Coast. Instead of eight legs and two big pinners, he has 10 regular feet. I never seen it myself, but I have told about it."

Reddy thought this over for a moment. Then came another thought. "If he hasn't any big claws, how does he protect himself?"

"He is protected by sharp spines," Barker said.

"I hear. On account of that he is called the Spiny Lobster. He is a very good swimmer," explained Barker.

"Does he have the same claws?" Reddy asked.

"No, he is quite a hand-stander, as lobsters go," replied Barker. "He is blue and brown mixed together."

"I wonder if he has the same colors that Big Claw has," remarked Reddy.

a leg go. "Does he ever get that leg back again?" inquired Reddy.

"What a silly question!" snapped Barker. "Of course he doesn't. But the next time he changes his shell he gets another leg in its place, so what's the difference?"

How to Carve.

THE chief care in carving the alchbone of beef is to cut the slices evenly. Cut off and lay aside a slice from the entire top, of sufficient thickness to reach the juicy portion of the meat. A quarter-inch slice will probably accomplish this. Then carve, horizontally, moderately thin slices (not extremely thin).

There are two kinds of fat in this joint and diners should be asked as to preferences. The solid fat at the one end should be cut in one slice with the meat in order to serve the lean and fat together. The softer fat, which lies at the back and about the center, should be cut in horizontal slices and served to those who request it.

A round of beef is carved in the same way as the alchbone, the only requisite being a sharp knife and a steady hand to cut even slices in order to preserve the good appearance of the joint.

In this world a man must be either anvil or hammer.—Longfellow.

Tips for the Home Dressmaker

YOU will want at least one tiered shirt. The two-tiered flouncings are popular, as are also four-tier box-pleated effects. Sometimes the back shows four tiers while the front is in apron effect so that individual taste may be displayed in applying tiers.

If you make the fashionable U-shaped neck in the afternoon dress fill it in with a yoke of a gumpie.

Cheese Fritters

Into a pint of corn meal mush stir a cup of grated American cheese, a beaten egg, two table-spoons cornstarch, one-third cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt and a teaspoon baking powder. Make into flat cakes and fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a bit of bread in a minute.

THE MOST TERRIFYING SOUND—BY RUBE GOLDBERG

THE RABBIT BALL.
THE home run clout has petered out. Impotent are the sticks; The Browns and Nats with all their bats In one game made but six.

Yea, Bo, it's tough! The pitcher's stuff Had all the batters bluffed; Of all hits made in four games played But twelve home runs were cuffed.

The rabbit ball they said last fall Was laid upon the shelf; And it was said to be as dead As old King Tut himself.

And that's the way it is today— Few homers mark the strife; But after all the rabbit ball, Is showing signs of life.

GIDDAP!
The man on the sandbox says if the Browns can overcome a 25-game lead they have as good a chance to win the flag as anybody. Let's go, boys!

The American Association is a Class AA league. But there isn't any class to the major leagues this season unless you give the Yanks the benefit of the doubt.

To Victor didn't belong the spoils. Another old axiom kicked into a cocked hat.

The man on the sandbox says there seems to be a growing sentiment in favor of nominations being made in the old conventional way.

THE PRIMARY.
WITH vim and animation The politician ran; He won the nomination— And then the fun began!

TOO TRUE.
Senator Sorghum says a public office may be a private snap but making two campaigns for one job isn't what it is cracked up to be.

Besides, it's expensive. Seats in the Senate that used to retail for $25,000 or $30,000 now run anywhere between $350,000 and $1,000,000.

Of course in some of the Western States they are not so expensive, but there has been a marked advance all along the line, as the teller says.

In Pennsylvania the item of wasteful watching alone runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

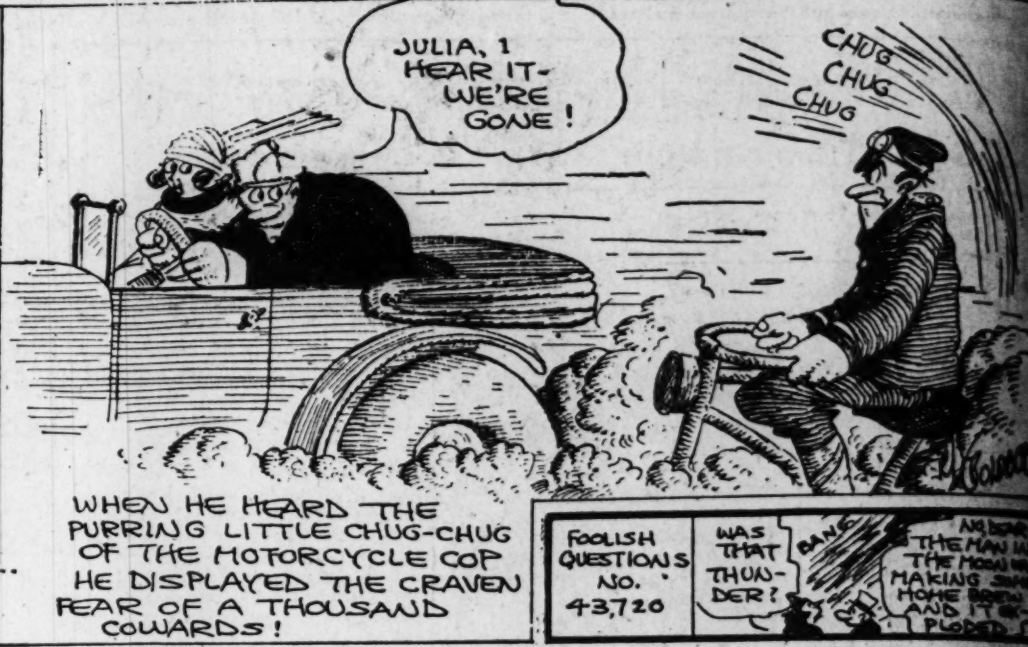

With Senator Reed and his committee on the job, the senatorial candidates may do their own watching in the future, particularly as regards their step.

BANK IS CLOSED
AFTER FINANCE
BUREAU INQUIRY

Citizens' Security at Englewood, Mo., Had Been Ordered to Remove Some Paper It Held.

39TH TO FAIL IN STATE SINCE JAN. 1

Secretary of State Becker
Had Part of Auto License Fees on Deposit in Defunct Institution.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. AUG. 7.—The Citizens' Security Bank of Englewood, Mo., near Kansas City, was closed today by a resolution of the board of directors and turned over to the State Finance Department. The close followed a recent investigation by the State Finance Department of some of the paper in the bank, which the directors were instructed to remove.

H. E. Cole of Englewood, cashier of the bank, is a brother-in-law of Donald W. Ross, former Special Deputy State Finance Commissioner in charge of liquidation of the defunct Night and Day Bank of St. Louis. Ross is serving two five-year sentences in the penitentiary for embezzlement of funds of the Night and Day Bank, while he was in charge of it as liquidating officer.

The last statement by the bank at Englewood reports that last April 30 its deposits were $142,207; loans, $106,413; bills payable, $100; total resources, $163,260; capital stock, $10,000; surplus, $140.

This is the thirty-ninth State bank closed since the first of this year. The bank had been one of the depositories used by Secretary of State C. U. Becker as former Special Deputy State Finance Commissioner. License fees collected by the registration division in his department. Becker is not in Jefferson City, but at his office it was said that most of the State funds on deposit in the bank had been withdrawn by Becker in the last month and turned over to the State Treasurer. About $11,000 was withdrawn three weeks ago. The other checks drawn by Becker against the deposit, one for $1214 and the other for $3486 still are in the State Treasurer's office and had not been cleared when the bank was closed.

Game Hunters Join in Chase; Footprints Discovered at Many Places.

By the Associated Press. RED BANK, N. J., Aug. 7.—Although an East Indian leopard, which escaped from a private zoo at Middletown, was still at large today, fears of nearby residents were somewhat allayed by the reassuring statements of experts that the animal would harm no one unless cornered, and by the fact that it has bothered no person since it gained liberty last Thursday. Armed posses have scoured the territory for miles around, but without locating the beast. Discovery of feline tracks were reported at several places. The chase today was joined by several experienced big-game hunters. Fox hounds also were pressed into service.

DIES WITH DAUGHTER IN RIVER

By the Associated Press. MONTELO, WIS., Aug. 7.—Fred Silvers, 57 years old, of Champagne, Ill., was drowned, and his daughter, Ruth, 25, died of heart disease in Fox River here shortly after noon yesterday. Silvers was drowned when, although unable to swim, he tried to save the girl who had cried out to him as she sank while swimming. They were of a party of five, including Mrs. Silvers, that had been camping along the stream for 10 days.

Mrs. Silvers' body was recovered within 10 minutes by Blaine Slavin, village Marshal. Examination by County Coroner N. A. Hardell revealed no water in the lungs, and he gave heart disease as the cause of death. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson in England. SOUTHAMPTON, England, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late President, arrived today on the Leviathan from New York. She said she had come to make that possible would not divulge her plans here. She is to stay in England several weeks before leaving for the continent. Mrs. Wilson was accompanied by her brother, R.
